Two Atlantans Meet Death in Shallow Water

VICTIMS' DEATHS BELIEVED CAUSED BY HEART ATTACKS

Wilson Picklesimer Is Drowned While in Swimming With Companions in Mooney's Lake.

TOWERY DROPS DEAD IN PABLO BEACH SURF

Reeves Weems, Seventeen-Year-Old Boy, Is Drowned While in Mill Pond Near Lyerly.

Two Atlanta men and one Chattooga county youth met death Sunday afternoon while in swimming—the first fatalities of the season reported in Georgia, since hot weather has made mill ponds, swimming pools, and the surf, centers of daily gatherings.

The victims are:

Wilson Picklesimer, 20 years old, of Buckhead, who was drowned at Mooney's lake, just off Piedmont road, near Peachtree.

G. H. Towery, 38, of 237 Washington street, who dropped dead while in the surf at Pablo Beach, Fla.

Reeves Weems, 17, of Lyerly, who was drowned in a mill pond near Lyerly.

WILSON PICKLESIMER MEETS DEATH IN MOONEY'S LAKE.

Picklesimer was drowned late Sunday afternoon while in swimming in Mooney's lake. Since the water at the point where his body was found was so shallow that a man could have waded out, according to his companions, it is believed that death was due to a sudden heart attack.

When he failed to return to the dressing room his absence was noted by friends and a search resulted in his body being found by Carl Wingo, of Rock Springs avenue.

Picklesimer, a plumber by trade, came to Atlanta recently from Cartersville. He was boarding at Buckhead and working with his brother in the plumbing business, C. M. Coffey, one of the swimming party, stated.

He went to the lake with Coffey, who lives at Peachtree and Dunwoody, and J. H. Lloyd, of Buckhead. Others in the lake at the time of the drowning were Wingo, the man who found the lifeless body; Hoke Barron, of Jacksonville, and Mooney Saine, who lives on the Piedmont road.

Victim is Missed.

"We had all been swimming and boating and finally left the water for the dressing room," said Mooney Saine. "When Picklesimer did not come in we started looking for him. The swimmers were then all called from the lake and Picklesimer did not answer when we called.

"Some of those who had not taken off their bathing suits then started a search of the water—which is very shallow. Wingo found the body in water not deep enough to reach a man's shoulders."

The body was removed to the chapel

One Boy Killed, Four Hurt Seeking Safety in Tunnel

Small Boys Run Down by Train Seeking Refuge From Bully Gang.

Philadelphia, June 15.—David Miller, 15, was instantly killed and four of his friends, ranging from 9 to 14 years of age, were injured seriously Sunday when they were struck by a train in the Pennsylvania railway tunnel where they had taken refuge from a gang of older boys which has been terrorizing and bullying the younger ones of the neighborhood.

The older youths, who style themselves as the "Corkstown gang," are said to have broken up the lads' baseball game and driven them into the tunnel.

The boys who were injured are Herbert Cann, 10, both legs amputated; Isador Cann, 14; Paul Rosenfeld, 9, and Jack Bloomfield, 13 years old.

THREE MEN DEAD, 27 ARE GASSED AS PIPE BURSTS

Deadly Fumes Hurl Safety Cock From Huge Conduit in Indiana Power House.

Indiana Harbor, Ind., June 16.—Three men lost their lives and twenty-seven others were rendered unconscious when gas suddenly filled the room in which they were working Sunday afternoon at the power station of the Inland Steel company here.

Two men, at first believed dead, were revived with pulmotors. Twenty-five are in the company's emergency hospital, ten of them in a serious condition, according to physicians.

After gas was turned off in a blast furnace near the power station the fumes went into a one-foot conduit leading into the power-house and rushed through with such force that a water seal safety cock in the room where the thirty men were at work was blown off.

Pulmotors Effective.

The dead: Blanchard Reeb, South Chicago; Alex Faulkner, Gary, Ind.; John Obenovich, Indiana Harbor.

The two who were revived with pulmotors were Samuel Singleton and an unidentified Mexican laborer who had been pulled out of the gas-filled room by rescuers and physicians had pronounced them dead. They were revived with pulmotors 20 minutes later.

According to some of the survivors, they heard a loud noise, resembling an explosion, and then a hissing sound. Immediately afterwards the safety cock was blown across the room, which became filled with gas so quickly that no one inside had time to escape.

Form Rescue Squads.

Other workmen, busy in another part of the building, heard shouts and smelled gas. While one of them ran to turn off the gas in the blast furnace line, others formed rescue squads

AUTOISTS CHASE SPEEDING MACHINE AFTER ACCIDENT

Miss Emelize Wood and Miss Frances Parks Badly Injured at Six Points in Inman Park.

TWO NEGROES IN CAR AT TIME OF ACCIDENT

Witnesses Say Driver Increased Speed—Residents Charge Inadequate Police Protection.

Police of Atlanta, Fulton and DeKalb counties, and citizens of Inman Park last night joined in an effort to arrest two negroes, whose speeding car struck down and badly injured two young women at Six Points in Inman Park. The victims were Miss Emelize Wood, of 132 North Moreland avenue, daughter of Walter J. Wood, of Rhodes-Wood Furniture company, and Miss Frances Parks, of Los Angeles.

Immediately after the accident, Traffic Officer Dorsett, who was on duty at Six Points, jumped into his car and followed the speeder and several citizens joined in the pursuit.

Negro Escapes.

Dorsett was soon obliged to give up the chase, but the citizens with larger cars, among them Andy King, former Atlanta police commissioner, and his son, R. King, kept up the pursuit.

The negro driver turned out of Euclid avenue into Moreland and then into Ponce de Leon, finally making his escape down a side street not far from the baseball park.

Miss Wood and Miss Parks, who appeared at the Howard theater last week, received severe bruises and lacerations about the body when struck by the roadster. Miss Woods may have been internally injured. The victims were taken to the Wood home.

Driver Increases Speed.

The two young women were crossing the street at the corner on their way to a drug store. Witnesses, stated that the car did not carry tail lights and was traveling at a rate of 40 miles an hour. After the accident the driver increased the speed of his car.

Miss Parks, who is visiting Miss Wood, has been in Atlanta for 10 days.

Charge Inadequate Protection.

Citizens of Inman park Sunday night, after the accident, charged that their section of the city is not being given adequate protection by the police against traffic violations.

They stated that Six Points, in Inman Park, is the most congested point in the city and that autoists apparently pay no attention whatever to speed regulations or to any other kind of ordinances.

Some parents are even keeping their children away from kindergarten rather than risk their lives on the streets, it is claimed.

Out of 67 cases made Sunday by the traffic department for various violations, five charged with operating automobiles while intoxicated. The number for this offense is the largest since the traffic crusade was begun.

Other cases docketed charged 22 motorists with violating traffic ordinances; 18 with speeding; six with reckless driving and 16 with violating the dimmer ordinance.

NEW CHURCH SPROUTS

Christian Science Discontents Start New Organization.

Boston, June 15.—Formed by a "dissenting minority," the Christian Science parent church of the new generation held its first service here today. The church, organized under the leadership of Mrs. Annie C. Hill, is composed of members who have resigned from the mother church as a result of recent litigation.

John V. Dittemore, who was elected a director of the mother church on the recommendation of the founder, Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, two years before her death, and who resigned from the chruch on his removal from the board in 1919, has been active in organizing the new church. Mr. Dittemore still is one of the trustees of Mrs. Eddy's estate, amounting to more than $3,000,000, which controls the publication of all her books.

Regarding the new society, Mr. Dittemore said: "For a number of years, Mrs. Annie C. Bill, supported by a group of devoted followers in England, has developed and maintains a minature church organization on the lines of the system of government established and directed by Mrs. Eddy during her life-time."

White Indians Are Found

:: EXPLORERS ON WAY HOME WITH TRIBAL KING ::

By Americans in Darien

(Copyright, 1924, by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Colon, Canal Zone, June 15.—The Marsh-Darien expedition has discovered white Indians and will sail for New York in three weeks with the king of the Darien and two white Indians.

This message was received here today from Richard O. Marsh, leader of the expedition into the previously unexplored wilderness of eastern Panama, which already has cost the lives of two members of the exploring party.

Marsh's message said: "The white Indians I am bringing with the king of the Darien are a boy of 19 and a girl of 21. They are golden-haired, blue-eyed and white-skinned. Their bodies are covered with long, downy white hair. They are not the standard white Albino type, but look like very primitive Nordic whites. We have discovered many strange, primitive white Indians with evidence of a very ancient civilization. We have secured a large ethnological collection and fine moving pictures."

In addition to Marsh, who is a civil engineer and explorer, the party which sailed from New York January 13, included Professor John L. Baer, ethnologist and anthropologist of the Smithsonian institution, also of the faculty of George Washington university; Dr. H. L. Fairchild, geologist of the University of Rochester, and Dr. Charles M. Breder, ichthyologist of the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

The explorers met hardships and dangers from the beginning, entering the jungle from the Atlantic side, along the Chucunaque river.

About two months ago a young attache of the Panamaian government, who was assigned to the expedition, succumbed to exposure and disease, and two weeks ago Professor Baer died of chagres fever.

Many attempts have been made to penetrate the savage Darien region since the occupancy by the Spaniards early in the sixteenth century, but as previous efforts have failed. The Indians were treated so cruelly by the Spaniards that they swore eternal enmity to the white man, and all who ventured up the Rio Darien on the west or the Chucunaque on the east have been killed.

A determined effort was made by the Germans in the spring of 1908, with the Von Tueber expedition. Only one half-crazed man, who left the party before they reached the country of the Darien Indians, returned.

Before entering the Darien, members of the Marsh expedition predicted that if the white Indians were found the discovery would be among the most important of modern times in its bearing on anthropological research into origin of American racial cultures which may profoundly affect scientific conclusion as to the origin and spread of modern civilization.

JAP IMMIGRANTS FLOCK TO STATES

Japanese Who Have Resided in America, Rush Back in Ships To Beat July 1 Ban.

Tokio, June 15.—Japanese who after living in America had returned to Japan are now rushing back to the United States.

Two batches will sail from Japan this week, part of them on the President Jackson and part of the Empress of Australia.

Eight hundred and fifty "re-emigrants" left Yokohama Saturday on three ships.

Meanwhile there is a growing propaganda against the anti-American element, and the motion picture houses of western Japan have resolved that it is still too early to exclude American films from their houses.

The Oriental Hotel at Kobe has discontinued its dance programs for the present, following the wave of anti-American outbursts.

McAdoo Managers Plan Overthrow Of Two-Thirds Rule

Claim Adoption of House Rules in 1920 Abolished Old Tradition.

New York, June 15.—Among today's political developments in democratic circles in the pre-convention campaign here were:

Some of the McAdoo managers indicated their determination to fight for substitution of a majority for the time honored two-thirds rule in the nomination of candidates. They claimed the two-thirds requirement actually abolished when the convention of 1920 voted to be governed by the rules of the house of representatives.

Meredith Nicholson, Indiana, novelist and politician, announced that the Hoosier state probably would not formally place Senator Ralston in nomination and that on the first ballot, all of the state's 30 votes might not be cast for him. The purpose of this is to make Ralston the darkest kind of a dark horse.

Edward F. Goltra, Missouri democratic leader and national committeeman, said that his state, which has been claimed by McAdoo, probably will vote for a favorite son, former Governor Frederick D. Gardener, on the early ballots.

George E. Brennan, Illinois leader notified the democratic national committee he will arrive in New York Wednesday. Tom Taggart, Indiana leader, will get here the same day. So will former Judge Edward Moore, of Youngstown, dominant in the Ohio delegation and manager of the Cox candidacy four years ago. Virtually all of the democratic leaders will be on hand before the end of the week.

BRITISH LEGATION IS UNDER SIEGE

English Official Resists Order of Obregon Government To Leave Mexican Territory.

Mexico City, June 15.—Locked in the British legation with the water supply and telephone cut off, H. A. C. Cummins, representative of the British government here, is resisting efforts of the Mexican government to expel him from the country.

Eighteen men from the police department, the foreign office, the war office and the department of the interior surround the building for a block.

It is expected that the police will break into the legation and arrest and deport Cummins, but invasion of the legation would mean violation of extraterritorial rights, and might be followed by grave consequences.

Locked in Since June 10.

The order expel Cummins was given by President Obregon after repeated efforts had been made by Mexico to persuade Britain to withdraw him as "persona non grata."

Since June 10 Cummins has been locked in the legation, but it was not until Saturday that the secret police began their preparations to arrest him, as the expulsion order only then took effect.

There is plenty of food in the legation, and the official is prepared to withstand the siege now effective. It is understood that his government has ordered him to remain in the legation.

May Use Force.

The Cnilean minister visited the British legation Sunday and made an unsuccessful attempt to persuade Cummins to leave quietly.

If force is used in expelling him Mexico will violate the extraterritorial rights of the British legation, but it is understood that the Obregon government intends to take the step

SNAKE SHATTERS ONE MAN'S FAITH IN HOLY ROLLERS

Huntsville, Ala., June 15.—(Special.)—Attempting to prove that his faith as a "Holy Roller" would make him immune to a rattlesnake bite may cost Buddy Simmons, a tenant on the farm of W. T. Vann, near Hobbs Island, his life. At a "Holy Roller" meeting last week Simmons declared his faith in immunity from rattlesnake bite, and from some unknown place a rattler was produced.

Simmons made good his boast so far as he was personally concerned, and the rattler bit him twice on the fingers. Since then his arm has swelled and may have to be amputated to save his life, physicians say. Another man in the crowd fared better than Simmons. He picked up the reptile, handled it at will, and was not bitten, but it was claimed that he was well "saturated with wildcat liquor"—so much so that no fastidious snake would care to bite him.

ALIENISTS BRAND FRANKS' SLAYERS "IRRESPONSIBLE"

Insanity Specialists Hired by Leopold and Loeb Families Agree on "Deficiencies."

MORE EXAMINATIONS OF BOYS TO FOLLOW

One Doctor Suggests That Cure for Two "Intellectuals" Is Possible in Four or Five Years.

BY H. H. ROBERTSON.

Chicago, June 15.—Colleagues in intellectual pursuits, brilliant students, social lions and self-confessed partners in one of the most atrocious murders in criminal history, Richard A. Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., are "abnormal" and should not hang, in the opinion of eminent alienists retained by their multi-millionaire families.

The two young experimenters in human emotions, who said they abducted and murdered 13-year-old Robert Franks, their friend and the son of a neighbor, to "see what he would do," were not responsible for their crime because "both were victims of mental and physical abnormalities over which neither had control," the phychiatrists who examined them have decided.

No Moral Sense in Leopold.

Despite efforts made to keep the result of the examination secret, it becam known that Saturday some of the physicians who conducted tests of Leopold and Loeb for two days in an improvised laboratory conferred and agreed that the two youths were not normal in many respects.

Leopold, some of the tests disclosed, has practically no moral sense. He has ideas of right and wrong, but his ideas do not coincide with those commonly accepted. Leopold, the tests showed, believes that men of unusual intellectual attainments, who have been carefully trained, are above the ordinary laws and conventions and

HERRIOT TO GRANT GENERAL AMNESTY

New Premier of France Seats Himself at Desk of Talleyrand in Quai d'Orsai.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Paris, June 15.—After saluting the Unknown Soldier under the Arc de Triomphe, eulogizing Emile Zola at a public ceremony this afternoon, and at the same time forecasting that general amnesty would be one of the first acts of the new government, Premier Herriot installed himself in the foreign office at the Quai d'Orsai.

In this gorgeous office, from whose tapestried walls Henry IV, King of France and Navarre, the plump Marie de Medicis the queen consort, and other notables of bygone days, look down upon him, France's new premier must have experienced strange emotions. He had risen from poverty . . . a poor boy, son of an impecunious army major and educated on a free-state scholarship, whose aunt was a cook and whose first warm overcoat was the gift of that aunt's employer, the novelist Maurice Barres, a colleague of Herriot's in the last chamber.

Takes Desk of Talleyrand.

As he leaned his bulky frame over the magnificent desk wrought with inlay and marquetry, he must have felt a secret pride, for that desk belonged to no less a person than Talleyrand.

Another man of humble origin about the same time was packing up his treasured books at Luxembourg Palace preparatory to transporting them to the Palace of the Elysee, where he is due to reside for seven years . . Gaston Doumergue, president of the republic. M. Doumergue spent a comparatively quiet day receiving the congratulations of his exulting southern friends, who this evening gave in his honor a colossal banquet. This

House of Death Is Under Guard To Block Bombs

Victims of Turret Tragedy Await Burial as "Reds" Threaten.

San Pedro, Cal., June 15.—(By the Associated Press.)—Threats to blow up the morgue containing bodies of 48 victims of last Thursday's explosion aboard the U. S. S. Mississippi, said by police to have been uttered by radicals whose hall was raided and wrecked by sailors here last night, caused a strong armed guard of civilian and naval police to be thrown about the morgue early today.

The guard was placed as the result of information given to Police Lieutenant Hollowell to the effect that members of the Industrial Workers of the World planned to dynamite the morgue in retaliation for the attack on their meeting place.

WARRANTS ISSUE FOR 4 MEN HELD AS MAIL BANDITS

Wounded Prisoner Directs Sleuths in Search for Loot Taken in Train Robbery.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Chicago, June 15.—An alleged confession of a suspect, identification of others, and information found in letters taken from them, guided city, state and federal authorities in their investigation today of the $1,000,000 registered mail robbery Thursday night, when four automobile loads of bandits held up a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul mail train a few miles from here.

Twenty $1,000 bills, some of which, according to federal officials, were identified as coming from the registered pouches, were found in possession of James H. Watson, arrested late last night when he came to the flat where previously detectives had taken J. H. Wayne, identified as a bandit shot during the robbery; Paul Wade, Tulsa, Okla., aviator; Walter McComb and James Mahoney. Federal warrants charging robbery of the mails have been issued for the last four.

Wayne Guides Searchers.

Acting on information obtained from Wayne, wounded five times and near death, detective squads were dispatched today to definite localities to search for the loot, which they hoped to recover nearly intact. Confidence that they were following the right leads

EDITOR ARRESTED IN ROME MYSTERY

Arrest Follows Long Interview Between Writer and Italian Judge in Charge of Case.

Rome, June 15.—(By the Associated Press.)—Whether or not Giacomo Matteotti, member of the chamber of deputies who has been mysteriously missing, since last Tuesday, is dead or alive is still unknown. Today various reports have been in circulation, one of these to the effect that the mutilated body of the deputy had been found and secretly brought back to Rome and hidden. The police asserted that they had no knowledge of the whereabouts of Matteotti, and that they still were continuing their search for him.

Judge Grossi, after investigating the disappearance of Matteotti and carefully going through the reports made by the police on the case, today summoned Signor Filippelli, editor of the Corriere Italiana to his office and interrogated him. Filippelli, after he left the judge's chambers, resigned his position and immediately left Rome by train. Meantime an order for his arrest had been issued and police in fast motor cars sped after the train and succeeded in overtaking it at a station 50 miles outside Rome. He was arrested and brought back to the capital. The details of his interrogation by the judge have not been made public.

PUGILIST'S SISTER GRAPPLES KILLER, CAUSING ARREST

One State Trooper Shot and Police Lieutenant Beaten in Attempt To Seize Gunmen.

SLAYER IS CAUGHT AFTER AUTO CHASE

Dead Man Won Fame in Sport World by Staying 12 Rounds With Jack Dempsey.

New York, June 15.—Bill Brennan, the heavyweight prize-fighter, was shot and killed in the Tia Juana cabaret here, which he owned, early Sunday.

Brennan, whose principal claim to fame has been that he once stayed 12 rounds in the ring with Heavyweight Champion Jack Dempsey, was talking to a group of friends in the cabaret when two men who had been requested to leave the premises earlier in the evening insisted that he hear their grievances.

The big fighter entered the dark hallway in which the men were awaiting him, and a few seconds later fell to the floor with a bullet in his chest and another in his abdomen. Brennan died on the way to the hospital.

Gunmen Had Been "Bounced."

Two men, who described themselves Jams Hughes and Frank Rassi, were captured after a chase by the police and are being held.

James Cullen, one of the group with whom Brennan was talking before he was summoned to his death, was in a serious condition in a hospital Sunday from the effects of a bullet which the killers fired into his neck as he pursued them after they had killed his friend. Cullen is a New York state trooper.

The arrested men refuse to talk, but police are unwilling to believe that mere pique, owing to the intimation given them that their presence in the Tia Juana was undesirable, was the motive of the shooting. Detectives, who unavailingly attempted to question Hughes and Rassi, declare that the murder had been carefully planned.

Brennan Called Out.

Brennan, Cullen and a group that included the fighter's sister, Shirley Sherman, who was an entertainer in the place, were chatting following the end of the Saturday business night when an employee approached Brennan and told him that the two men to whom objection had been taken earlier in the evening were outside in the corridor.

"They want to see you," Brennan was told.

Smiling an assurance at his sister that he would "take care" of the men, Brennan stepped into a darkened corridor to meet them.

Angry words, rising almost to a confusion of shouts, were heard by the group in the cabaret proper, followed by two reports of a revolver.

Sister Grapples Slayer.

Shirley Sherman leaped to the doorway, closely followed by Cullen.

Brennan's body barred their path, stretched on the floor.

Down the hallway leading to the entrance of the building sped the murderers and Brennan's sister, crazed by the sight of her brother's body prone on the floor, ran after them.

She outran Cullen, and made a flying leap at the nearest of the fleeing gunmen. He half turned, saw himself attacked by a girl and shook her loose, firing back down the hall as he did so.

The shot struck Cullen in the neck. Reaching the ground floor, Hughes

When Kimball Corner Was a Wild Thicket

In 1844, when the site of the Kimball House was nothing but a virgin forest, only a few stores stood within the little settlement to become Atlanta.

One store was opened by Loyd & Collins. Kile began his grocery. Dunn set up a bonnet shop and Norcross established a general store.

Volumes of water since those days have flowed under the bridge!

The village of Terminus grew into Marthasville and then Atlanta. The Kimball became a rendezvous for politics and society. And fifteen years before any other Atlanta newspaper of today was even in existence, The Atlanta Constitution began telling the South about the bargains in Atlanta merchandise.

Even as in the '60's, housewives and business men of this city in 1924 are buying by The Constitution because they have found that it pays.

and Rassi found their way barred by a locked door. They crashed a hole through the window glass comprising the upper part of the door and leaped into the street, straight into the arms of Police Lieutenant John Haggerty, who was passing on his way home.

Haggerty attempted to arrest the two men, but was beaten into unconsciousness and the murderers eluded him.

Reaching the street, Hughes and his companion commandeered a passing car and ordered the driver to take them away in a hurry.

Arrest Two Gunmen.

As the car whizzed past a corner two blocks away, two patrolmen saw the drawn guns of Brennan's killers and pursued them in a taxi. They overtook the fleeing machine and arrested the two men, who gave their names as James Hughes and Frank Rassi, both of New York.

A 25-calibre revolver was found on the running board of the car in which the men attempted to escape. It was with a gun of this bore, according to police, that Brennan was killed.

Brennan was shot in the chest and abdomen. He died before reaching the hospital.

Miss Sherman rushed after her brother in time, she says, to seen an unkempt, dishevelled man in a gray suit leaping for an exit.

This man, who was later identified by Brennan's sister as Hughes, is alleged to have fired the shots which killed the pugilist.

Girl's Act Caused Arrest.

It was the girl's plucky effort to capture Hughes that ultimately resulted in his arrest. While he was struggling with her, three of the gang escaped through an open hallway into the street.

Hughes and Rassi, the latter apparently having remained behind to assist his pal, were so flustered by the unexpected attack from the young woman that they did not follow their comrades out of the building.

Instead, the two made a break for the front entrance and were halted when they reached the street door, which had been locked when the cabaret was closed to patrons at 1 o'clock.

Bill Brennan was born in Ireland on June 23, 1893. He was 31 years old.

Brennan began his ring career in 1914 by effecting quick-time knockouts against numerous second-raters. He continued to bowl over such opponents for a couple of years and gradually worked himself into faster company and two fights with Jack Dempsey.

Brennan's Record.

Brennan stayed 12 rounds with Dempsey in 1920 before he was put to sleep.

Two years before, he had been knocked out by Dempsey in six rounds.

The dead fighter's knockout record is lengthy but not impressive. He had decisions over Bob Martin, Battling Levinsky; had drawn two battles and lost a third with the latter and was charged with decision defeats at the hands of Billy Miske and Harry Greb.

Brennan fought four times last year. With Hugh Walker he went 10 rounds to no decision, lost to Floyd Johnson in 15 rounds, and was knocked out by Luis Angelo Firpo and Billy Miske in 12 and four rounds, respectively.

He is survived by a wife and one child.

SOUTH IS PRAISED BY NEGRO EDUCATOR

Buffalo, N. Y., June 15.—(Special.)—Rev. B. R. Holmes, president of the Holmes institute, of Atlanta, and one of the leading colored educators of the south, delivered a very interesting address to citizens and members of the New York annual conference of the A. M. E. church Sunday morning in Grace M. E. church (white).

"There never was a time in the history of the south when the relation between the white and colored people was more friendly than at present," said the speaker. "The best class of people of both races are co-operating to make the south the best place to live."

Holmes made an appeal for funds for support of the Holmes institute. W. H. Heard, a former slave in Georgia and now presiding bishop of the First Episcopal district of the A. M. E. church, presided. After saying that the happiest days of his life were spent in the south, he paid a high tribute to the work of the Holmes institute, declaring that it deserves support of people in all sections of the country.

Rev. N. B. Parks, formerly of Georgia, was appointed pastor of one of the leading churches in New York city.

Holmes left at the close of the conference for Boston, where he will hold educational mass meetings to raise funds for Holmes institute. He will speak in New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington before returning south.

While in Washington Holmes and a special delegation will call on President Calvin Coolidge and discuss the economic, educational and spiritual condition of negroes in the south.

First prize amounts to $750, and is to be used to defray expenses of attending a standard university.

Miss Florence Sweetman, 16, of Rochester, N. Y., won second prize—$500—and Byron Hill, 18, of Jackson, Tenn., took third honors and $250.

The essay subject was "Why America Should Prohibit Immigration for Five Years." The contest was open to school children throughout the country between 12 and 18 years old. More than 350,000 essays were submitted, it was said.

Two Caught in Raids.

Huntsville, Ala., June 15.—(Special.)—Deputy sheriffs were unusually active and moderately successful Saturday in their attempts to dam the flow of liquor in Huntsville and suburbs. They claim to have found a small quantity of liquor in the Milam livery stable on Meridian street, the proprietor, W. A. Milam, being arrested. In Dallas, Felix Trapp was arrested on a charge of having liquor in his possession, and a raid at his home is declared to have netted more than ten gallons. Milam and Trapp both gave bond.

Savannah "Get Acquainted" Tourists Here on Tuesday

MAYOR PAUL E. SEABROOK.

EDWARD B. WALKER.

GORDON SAUSSY.

GORDON L. GROOVER.

OLIVER T. BACON.

Savannah, Ga., June 15.—The special train carrying the 100 business and professional men of Savannah on their "get acquainted" and state port tour of Georgia, left the Central of Georgia depot this morning at a minute after midnight, bound for Augusta, the first stop to be made. They will reach the Hill City at 6 o'clock this morning.

With them went everything that is worth while to bring before the remainder of the state, the importance of a community of interest in her development. Accused of being "outside the state," these men are going to prove, they say, that they represent one of its main arteries of commercial life, that the city is heart and soul with the material development of all sections of the commonwealth, and that a greater, better, more prosperous and mightier Georgia is the task of all of its people.

The gospel of unanimity of spirit is going to be preached and some powerful arguments given by men who know how to argue and how to present a just cause. Gordon Saussy, who is not gifted with a weak voice, will have it strained before the journey is over, and aiding him in this all-important feature will be Mayor Seabrook and Alderman Whelchess, Chairman Bacon and Vice Chairman Moore, of the county commissioners; Frank M. Oliver and Dr. W. A. Taliaferro.

There will be more vital facts, important suggestions, pleasant observations and urgent ideas expressed by these Savannah men during the six days of the trip than have occurred within the memory of any one of thing, probably, in the same length of time. They are trained to the minute for the exacting rounds of festivities which the rest of the state has arranged with a hearty good will for their entertainment. Between, before, during and after these celebations in each city and town visited the business of the trip will be attended to.

Five hours will be spent today in Augusta. There will be breakfast at 8 o'clock, an automobile ride following, and the party will leave at 11 o'clock stocked up with 120 box lunches, which will be eaten on the train. From Augusta the itinerary today includes Thomson, this stop being reached at 12:20 p. m., and the train leaving at 12:45. There is no definite program arranged for Thomson, but in the twenty-five minutes many things will happen. The marine band will treat the Thomsonians to a "salt air" from the land of fiddlers.

Madison will be reached at 2:45, and a reception held in the public square—there being no formal program, though the party will remain for an hour in Madison and be given a true Madisonian welcome. From Madison the journey keeps on the Classic City, through which flows the Oconee. The party arrives in Athens at 5 in the afternoon, rides about the city, will be guests at dinner at the Georgian hotel at 8, and spend the night within the shade of the university, leaving at 5 o'clock tomorrow morning.

These are the functions of the first day's journey, and from thence they proceed to Gainesville and Atlanta, these two places dividing the entire schedule between them on the morrow.

CITIES OF STATE PLANNING WELCOME.

Athens, Ga., June 15.—(Special.) Athens and Savannah will get acquainted Monday when 100 citizens of the latter city arrive here on their tour of the state.

Athens has arranged a program with the aid of a committee of citizens, of which Captain J. W. Barnett is president, and will welcome the visitors with a large delegation of Athenains when they arrive at 5 o'clock at the Central of Georgia depot.

Thirty-five automobiles will be at the depot to take the visitors to the University of Georgia, where the Marine band, which accompanies the Savannahans, will give a concert. The visiting Georgians will then be carried over the city when the various educational institutions, manufacturing enterprises, and beautiful residential streets of Athens will be pointed out.

At 7:30 o'clock, the Marine band will give another concert, after which the visitors will be the guests of the city of Athens at a banquet at the Georgian hotel. Mr. Barnett will preside over the meeting. Mayor O. H. Arnold, Jr., will deliver an address welcoming the visitors to Athens. T. S. Mell will speak on the educational institutions here. Governor Clifford Walker will deliver an address. W. F. Dorsey, a former mayor, will represent the business interests of the city, and Abit Nix, the professional interest.

Thomasville Is Ready.

Thomasville, Ga., June 15.—(Special.)—Thomasville is looking forward with interest and pleacure to the coming of the 100 business men of Savannah who are making a "get-acquainted" tour around Georgia. According to their schedule, the Savannahans will arrive in Thomasville Friday morning, at 11:30 eastern time, and leave at 11:30 central time. Arrangements are being made for an enthusiastic reception to the Savannah party, and the visitors will be well entertained while here. It is only regretted that the time will be so short that they will not have an opportunity to see as much of the town and people as is desired.

Waycross Plans Breakfast.

Waycross, Ga., June 15.—(Special.) The Waycross Chamber of Commerce is receiving acceptances daily for the breakfast to be tendered members of the Savannah "good will tour" Saturday. Those who have accepted so far are: B. J. Bennett, Abram Cook, Sydney Luther, J. W. Bennett, H. D. Bunn, Rev. W. F. Mott, E. A. Herrin, J. A. Jones, M. E Brinson, Basil Cole, S. G. Coleman, C. E. Gibson, G. R. King, L. A. Wilson, A. R. Hood, George W. Popwell, E. P. Thompson, C. M. Williams, J. W. Bellinger, M. M. Monroe, Jack Williams J. D. Blalock, A. G. Miller, Dr W. D. Mixson, G. M. Tomberlin, Dr. H. J. Carswell, E. W. Combs, Dr. R. J. Heyde, J. G. Steinheimer.

The breakfast will be given from 7 to 8:30 during which time opportunity will be extended the Savannah party for short talks. Immediately following the breakfast, the visitors will be taken on a motor drive through the city and suburbs in cars furnished by members of the Chamber of Commerce.

Brunswick to Entertain.

Brunswick, Ga., June 15.—A joint committee representing the Brunswick Board of Trade and the Young Men's club, met today to arrange a definite program for entertainment of the 125 Savannah business men who will be in this city next Saturday on their state tour, this being the next to the last stop of the delegation. After having Brunswick Saturday afternoon, the Savannahans will make a short stop in Jesup, and will later in the day end their tour.

of Hunter & Blanchard company, where the coroner will hold an inquest today. It is supposed that death was due to heart trouble.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Picklesimer, of Cartersville; five brothers, J. E., J. W. and J. F. Picklesimer, of Atlanta, and E. J. and Burton Picklesimer, of Cartersville; five sisters, Mrs. W. A. Payne, of Jasper, Ala.; Misses Nellie and Maudie Picklesimer, of Cartersville; Mrs. George Williams and Mrs. W. D. Williams, of Cartersville.

The body will be taken to Cartersville today for funeral and interment. Arrangements will be announced later by Hunter-Blanchard.

G. H. TOWERY IS DROWNED WHILE BATHING IN SURF.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 15.—G. H. Towery, 38, of Atlanta, dropped dead while bathing in the surf at Pablo beach here today. Acute dilation of the heart caused death, according to examining physicians.

Towery was on a three-weeks' vacation, according to friends with whom he was bathing. Guards saw Towery disappear and brought the body to shore. They said there was less than three feet of water in the place where he went under.

Physicians said there was no water in the lungs and that Towery apparently died before being taken from the water.

The body was sent to Atlanta tonight.

Mr. Towery, who lived with his mother, Mrs. E. L. Deatz, of 237 Washington street, was sales manager for Chalmans Tailoring company, of Atlanta. He was formerly in the brokerage business here in the employ of J. B. Keaton company.

In addition to his mother, he is survived by a brother, James Towery, of Atlanta, and a sister, Mrs. Lucile Darling, of Syracuse, N. Y. Funeral arrangements will be announced later by Hunter-Blanchard company. The body is expected to arrive here this morning.

WHILE COMPANIONS WATCH YOUTH DROWNS IN POND.

Lyerly, Ga., June 15.—(Special.)—While three youthful companions watched, Reeves Weems, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Weems, of this city, was drowned this afternoon while swimming in a mill pond near Lyerly.

It is thought that the boy suffered an attack of cramps, and as the water was 10 feet deep at that point, he sank before any of his companions, who were dressing on the bank, could reach him. The body was recovered about an hour later, and a pulmotor used in a futile attempt to resuscitate him.

H. S. Carson, Jr., Ralph Cordle and Albert White, who went swimming with young Weems early in the afternoon, stated that the boy was not a good swimmer.

Authorities were notified immediately, and dragged the pond, finding the body about 20 feet from shore, and only five feet from where the boy sank.

The boy's father, Thomas S. Weems, is a prominent merchant of Lyerly. In addition to his parents, he is survived by several brothers and sisters.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed late Sunday night and will be announced Monday.

SUNDAY ACCIDENTS TAKE TOLL OF TWO

Only two cases of accidental injuries were treated at Grady hospital Sunday. One victim suffered a fractured skull when hit by a falling brick, and the second, a broken rib, when knocked down by a truck.

J. M. Watson, 60-year-old night watchman for the Fulton Lime & Cement company, who lives at 148 Middle street, was the victim of the brick. He was struck on the head as he passed by the company property under the Edgewood avenue viaduct Sunday night.

He was rushed to Grady hospital, dazed from the blow, by H. C. Brock, of 93 Carmel street. Surgeons fear his skull has been fractured. Brock, who is employed by the same company, then returned to conduct an investigation of the cause of the accident.

The truck victim was J. H. Allgood, 42, of Whitehall terrace. The manner in which he was hurt was not learned, no report of the accident having been filed with the police.

Hospital records show that he suffered a fracture of a rib on his right side. He was allowed to return home after his side was strapped.

WARRANTS ISSUE FOR 4 MEN HELD and would "clear up the affair in short order" was expressed by Morgan Collins, police chief, and Martin Hughes, detective chief.

"We have four of the bandits under arrest," Chief Hughes said after the federal warrants were issued to forestall habeas corpus proceedings in the state courts for the suspects' release.

Seek "Inside" Informant.

Wayne, who was identified by one of the mail clerks aboard the looted train, was reported as saying he was shot by the bandit leader for disobeying orders. His injuries made talk impossible but he communicated answers by slight movements of his head to questions written and held before his eyes. Police did not disclose who the other suspects were who were said to have been indentified.

A. E. Germer, chief postal inspector, conducted his investigation on possible connection between postoffice or federal reserve bank employees with the robbery. City and federal officers agreed that the bandits were in possession of some "inside" information.

Mahoney Identified.

The identity of James Mahoney, who was arrested when found under a bed in the flat where Wayne was found, was revealed tonight as that of a former west side political leader. He is said to have turned from politics with the advent of prohibition and to have made a small fortune in beer-running.

The police took extraordinary steps to learn Mahoney's true name when efforts were made Saturday to have him released on a writ of habeas corpus. The attempt to gain freedom for Mahoney through a state court writ failed when he was ordered held on a federal warrant.

Five other men are being sought in the robbery.

Report of Trustees Shows University's Need of Funds

Institution Being Starved to Death, Is Declaration of Special Committee.

Athens, Ga., June 15.—(Special.)—The University of Georgia is being literally starved to death for lack of adequate appropriation for its maintenance by the state of Georgia, and it cannot longer meet demands upon it and maintain its present standard unless the legislature is more liberal toward it. This, in brief, is the gist of a report of a special committee of the board of trustees of the university, submitted to the board at its annual meeting last week. The report was unanimously adopted by the board.

The report of this special committee represents six months of detailed study of the situation at the university and discloses an alarming situation at the state-owned institution of higher learning in Georgia.

It is pointed out that the annual state appropriation to the university, made by the legislature, is still the same as it was when the student body only numbered 300, whereas today the enrollment is 1,700—nearly six times as many. There has been a tremendous increase in male matriculation, the report points out, and women are also now admitted to the university, with the number rapidly increasing every year. This year there were 180 female students.

Miserly Policy.

The board has stinted in its administration of its available funds to the point of miserliness, the report states, and the salary payroll is pitiably small. Nothwithstanding this, however, the work is being done splendidly.

Special attention is called in the report to a three-year donation made to the university by the general education board of $40,000 per year. This was given to tide over the serious situation created by the inability of the board of trustees to increase before-the-war salaries of the faculty, many of whom were lost on this account to other institutions.

The three-year term for this fund expires this year, and it is pointed out that it was given with the belief that if the situation was tided over for the three years, the state would itself arrange to provide this sum annually after that time.

Report In Full.

The special committee was composed of George F. Gober, chairman; Lloyd Cleveland, A. S. Hardy and William H. Fleming, and its report in full is as follows:

"To the board of trustees of the university:

"The undersigned, your committee, which was appointed under a resolution at the last meeting of the board, a copy of which is set out in the first part of the general report, makes the following report:

"The committee met at Athens on December 5, 1923, and were in session the 5, 6 and 7th of December.

"Under the resolution of the board and its scope much work was put upon us which we endeavored to do and which is shown by the general report which is herewith presented.

"In this investigation we had before us the chancellor and the heads of the different departments. We endeavored to find out the exact conditions and the work done by the teaching force. In the last 20 years the work of the university has been increased from an attendance during the session of 1905-06 of 408 students to at this time an enrollment of about 1,700. Many departments have been added within this period along with the admission of women to the different schools of the university. There are now about 180 female students, and besides, there has been added a department of commerce, school of journalism, school of pharmacy, and extensions in other directions. The teaching force has been more than doubled; at the same time the state has not added a single new building during that time. The different departments have the same old furniture; the scientific department the same old apparatus, and while the trustees have endeavored to meet this increased development and have spent with niggardly economy whatever money was appropriated, still conditions remain and urgently demand additional appropriations to keep the institution abreast of the requirements which must be met.

"It is but fair to say that the legislators have always shown a proper spirit toward the state's institution, but they have been hampered by the lack of funds that could be appropriated for this work. We believe now that the legislators will help to the extent of their ability and it is important that our needs be properly presented.

Specific Report.

"Under subdivision 'a' of the resolution, your committee was called upon to report the amount of pay drawn by each officer of the university and the services rendered. We have gone into this fully and submit herewith an itemized statement of the funds received by the university and their disbursement. This shows the amount of pay drawn by each officer and the work done.

"In this investigation we have been impressed with the belief that every officer of the university has been faithful and efficient and has rendered full service for every dollar he has drawn. Many of the teaching force have been in the institution for long years; they have been offered increased pay to go elsewhere, but they have exhibited a loyalty to the institution which ought to be appreciated by our board. From our investigation we conclude that the services rendered by the teaching force are performed with the least reasonable amount of compensation.

"Under 'b' we are required to give the amount of teaching force in each department, the amount of work done by each professor or teacher and the hours given to the work and the number of students taught.

"It is true that owing to the number in some of the departments the work upon the teaching force appears to be much more onerous upon some than that upon others. While some of the departments may not have as many students as others, at the same time they must keep up the different classes and give to each class or section the same amount of professional work that would be required of it if the class or section were larger. If the university offers a department it is bound to give a full course to those who enter it.

Standard of Work.

"Under division 'c' of the resolution we are required to report the standard maintained in each department and the relation between the students and the professors.

"We are of the opinion that the standard maintained in each department is high and the proper amount of work is required. We believe that the heads of the departments are able and efficient and that each of them is thoroughly devoted to his work. This appears to us from the examination of the different heads by the hours they taught, and by the overflow in most departments. Many departments work under adverse conditions as to rooms and equipment; there is a complaint from everywhere of inadequacy of equipment and lack of needed funds.

"As to the relation between the students and the professors, we are led to believe from our examination and from other sources that this relation could not be better; we do not believe that it has been better at any time within the history of the institution. We call special attention to the statement made by Dr. Snelling to our committee in reference to his work as dean of the university. It shows that he is practical, kind and considerate, and this spirit has been appreciated by the students; he he shown a fatherly care for the interests and welfare of the students. We do not believe there is an institution in the country where there exists a higher moral standard.

"There has been inaugurated what is known as the students' council, which is giving much assistance to the dean. We note that since our meeting there has been a meeting of the students of the university at which resolutions were passed asking the faculty to dismiss from the institution any student who uses intoxicants or who becomes intoxicated. At the time we were there we were assured that there was but very little, if any, drinking amongst the students. The student body as a whole attend the Sunday schools, churches and engage in Y. M. C. A. work. We are prepared to give credit for this spirit of the students to the influence of the chancellor and the teaching force, who have always insisted upon the highest tandards, both morally and intellectually.

Parents Reassured.

"We are proud to be able to make this report and we can assure the parents of the state they need have no fear of sending their sons and daughters to the university.

"We call attention to another fact; the admission of female students to the university has proved a great advancement in many respects. These students are faithful and ambitious; they stand high in their classes. Any trouble that was anticipated on account of coeducation has not developed, but on the contrary their admission to the different schools has had a great and beneficial result. They have given no trouble, so far as the rules are concerned, and have shown themselves amenable to discipline; they neither ask nor expect any indulgence or favors on account of their sex. They stand high in their classes and we are firmly of the opinion that in the coming years the university will be proud of the record that these students will make in the different vocations into which they may enter, helped on as they will be by the advantages which they have derived from their attendance at the university.

"There is one necessity that must be met; it is necessary and imperative; these students have no dormitory; they must get board and lodging as best they can outside of the university in the city of Athens, and the result is that some of them have trouble in finding proper accommodations, even at great expense. We trust that the legislature will meet this. It would not take so much money, but the women of Georgia that desire to attend the university ought to be provided with dormitory accommodations.

"This matter cannot be urged too strongly upon the legislature; and we present it as urgently as we are able to do by this report to the board of trustees. The 180 female students now in attendance upon the institution would alone make a college. If they were placed in a separate college they could not be furnished by the state with the opportunities offered by the different departments of the university. Of course if we should get the funds the location would be a matter to be fixed by the board.

Matters of Economy.

"(d) This division of the resolution calls upon us to consider and report upon any matter of economy that is practical and advisable in the administration of the affairs of the university. A consideration of this matter has been in the main adverted to our other recommendations. We must say that after a full consideration of all matters we conclude that the administration of the affairs of the university is carried on economically. We are not prepared to point out any matter where expenses could be lessened under existing conditions.

"For years the board of trustees has urged upon the legislature, beginning at least fifteen years ago, the necessity of a central heating plant; this would be economical in the heating of the different buildings and also would be a great service from a sanitary standpoint; it would furnish a uniform temperature to the different buildings. As it is, many of these buildings are heated with stoves and some of them with separate steam heaters. These different units require more janitor service, more fuel, and besides are inefficient and uncertain. The university buildingss are scattered over a large area and this of course complicated the problem, but the board has heretofore had plans and specifications for such plant, and these show that the proposition is both practical, economical, and absolutely necessary.

Generally.

"Your committee most respectfully asks the different members of the board to read the general report of the committee as it will give them specific ideas in reference to existing conditions. The great increase in students and the necessary additional number of teachers along with the lack of proper buildings and equipment as shown by our investigations have impressed your committee with the exigencies that are now upon this board. If we are to maintain the University of Georgia in keeping with its past history and record as an institution of which the state shall continue to be proud and as one which will offer to the people of Georgia higher education as the state should do, there is much to be done and it requires of us at this particular time a supreme effort. It is true we have a legislative committee, and within the last twenty years the needs and the relations of the institution to the state have been presented strongly and as far as possible effectively to the legislature, but we would impress upon every member of this board, independent of the work of the legislative committee, that he see to it that whatever influence he has or can exert upon the legislature should be used in order to extricate ourselves from our present troubles.

"It should be humilitating to the state og Georgia that the general educational board has for the past few years in a spirit of alms giving advanced to the university the sum of $40,000 a year in order to retain its teaching force and in order to enable it to do the work that is required of it by the state.

"Of course, we appreciate this help; we needed it, and we have received it simply as a matter of necessity. With the 1st of July of this year this amount of money will not be furnished any longer by that board and we are compelled to make good this amount from some other source. We are compelled to have it in order to run the institution as it has been run, and maintain our present standard irrespective of the future increase of students which is bound to come; it is either this or let our teaching force go for lack of money to pay them and have cheaper men in their places. This ought not to be done; in fact, we can not afford to do it. We must go to the legislature and ask them as a matter of necessity to give us an extra appropriation of at least $40,000 in order to maintain our present status. This is the work of this board and the burden is upon every member of this board. The legislature is fair and kindly disposed toward the university, and if it is properly presented with the improved condition of the state treasury, we can get this money.

Morrill Fund Status.

"There is another matter that was brought before the board at the last meeting in Atlanta in reference to the relations of the university to the United States government in and about the Morrill fund. The university gets about $50,000 from this fund and complaint has been urged upon the part of the department of the interior in reference to the present disposition of this by the state. If this $50,000 is withdrawn from our support, it is impossible to see how the institution can get along. We do not know what, if anything, has been done in an effort to meet the demands of the department of the interior, but we can't too strongly urge the necessity of meeting the requirements of the United States government. This much is said for the reason we think it is necessary to present it. We have no criticism of anybody connected with it but it is something that must be met and any trouble there is about it must be overcome in some way.

"We call special attention to the report made to our committee by Chancellor Barrow. The chancellor is a practical business man as his work in the university has fully demonstrated. He knows that there are 100 cents in a dollar and the administration of his office has made that clear. He has shown a spirit of altruism in the development of the university. He assumed large financial responsibility in the extension and acquirement of properties that were necessary for the extension of the university.

"When some members of this committee came upon the board the property of the university consisted of the old campus which embraced about 37 acres. Largely through his work and endeavor it has a domain now of over eleven hundred acres. The university acquired the present building occupied by the law school through his effort and through his assumption of a large financial responsibility and of which as yet he has not been relieved.

"We cannot commend too highly our appreciation and admiration for his successful efforts in this work. Outside of all this his duties have been onerous; he has maintained the respect, love and good will of the students and as far as we have been able to find out there are possibly fewer jealsousies and factional differences in the faculty than before his coming into office.

The Law School.

"There will be found in the report a letter from the secretary of the Association of Law Colleges in reference to the admission of the law college into the association; also a copy of an article from its magazine in reference to the requirements for admission and a list of those schools who are members. It will be found that the law schools of Emory university and Mercer university are members. The objection made to our entrance is that their secretary considered only about 3,300 volumes in the library that would be counted under their requirement, although we have in all about 6,500 volumes; a good many of these, however, are duplicates. Another requirement is that it is necessary to have at least three members of the faculty who give their entire time to the work. As it is we have only one, Dr. Morris. It would seem that this is a matter that should be considered by the board. The law school of the university should offer as many inducements to law students to study here as any other institution in the state; it should come up to the standard of other schools with which it is to a certain extent in competition. If it can be urged against this department that it is outclassed by other schools in the state we would be at a great disadvantage and our attendance would suffer on account of it. The library committee of the law school has added about 300 new books since last commencement, which embraced the Federal Reporter and for which there is a balance of the purchase price still outstanding but which is not due as yet. These books were purchased at a considerable discount. The board has been able to allow the law library $250 a year for some time for the purchase of books. If it is possible, this amount should be increased. It may be that within a year or so the requirement can be met. This matter now has the consideration of the committee.

"Your committee was not charged with anything in reference to the agricultural college. Dr. Soule is president of the old agricultural and mechanical college which occupies an uncertain relation to the university proper in connection with the agricultural college. Dr. Soule has furnished a report which will be found in the body of the report. It is necessary to maintain, as we understand, the organization, in order to comply with the requirement of the United States government and to have the benefit of certain funds.

Regret at Limitation.

"Your committee refers all members to the body of our report for specific information as to the various matters considered by us. We close this report with regret as to the condition of the buildings and equipment, but this cannot be charged to the present administration since it has not been within its power to remedy them. It is wonderful the work has been carried on so well under such adverse conditons. This great state should wake up to the needs of the institution with its 1,700 students. Compared with other states, we are at the bottom of the list as to the amount of support furnished the university. The facts are stronger than any words we can offer and nothing left for argument.

"The charter of the university was granted in 1784. 'Old College' stands as a landmark of the beginning. This board rehabilitated this building about seventeen years ago and it will doubtless stand for another 100 years. We as trustees, and our predecessors have cared for the institution through the vicissitude of peace and war. The students that have gone from the institution have illustrated the patriotism and chivalry of our southland. Our trust is an executory one; the people of the state are the beneficiaries; each generation has a life interest in its benefits but we and our successors are charged with the duty of maintaining, preserving, and delivering the institution to succeeding generations for the object of its creation. The people of Georgia must not fail in this; the university is a heritage that must have due care and maintenance. As to the trustees, the burden is upon each of us individually; we cannot relieve ourselves of this by setting up that the responsibility is not upon us but upon the legislature. As has been said herein before, the legislators have shown themselves ready and willing to do what thy could but there is no claim for any purpose that stands higher upon them or upon the state. This board must present it in as strong light as possible and must stop short of nothing that is reasonable until conditions are remedied.

BOARD OF VISITORS CONFIRMS REPORT.

Confirming the findings of the special committee of the board of trustees, given above, is the report of the board of visitors of the university, which is appointed by the governor. This board, in its report, draws attention to the gradual reduction in the amount of the federal appropriation for the rehabilitation fund, and urges that the legislature provide funds to offset this reduction.

The report of the board of visitors is as follows:

"To the Honorable Board of Trustees of the University of Georgia:

"Gentlemen—In accordance with the new law which requires an examination into the conditions of the university each year, the board of visitors submits the following report, viz:

"The full board has assembled throughout the past few days; it has been directed in its deliberations and inquiries through reports and conferences with the various heads of all departments.

"We wish to bring to your attention the following findings and consequential recommendations. The character of work in the class rooms with consideration to courses offered and results achieved, has impressed us with its scope and thoroughness. That the university has maintained its high classification, despite the stupendous demand of an ever-increasing student body, is extremely gratifying. This has been done without additional space or physical equipment, and with too few teachers. We plead for an enlargement in both of these particulars and trust that you will abide by the chancellor's report and use all your influence to secure adequate funds to supply these needs.

The university is caring for many more students than its capacity now warrants. We are aware of the prevailing financial depression and of the restricted appropriations made to the university, but we specifically recommend an outlay for the following:

Dormitory for women.
Physics building.
Added space to the registrar's office.
More rooms and repair work for the infirmary.
Additional volumes for the library, to safeguard the highest classification.
Additional law books and a reading room for the law department.
Appropriations to the new department of geology.

The creation of the following offices:
A musical director of the university, who will direct the university band, glee clubs and religious singing in chapel.
A dean of men, whose sole business shall be to keep in direct personal touch with the young men students.
In the English department an instructor of public speaking.

More Money Imperative.

"With due regard to the importance of these needs, we bring before you now the most vital need—the maintenance of the teachers' salaries. We recommend that the legislature be asked for an appropriation to replace the fund provided by the general education board, which will be exhausted on July 1. The amount of $20,000 is needed for the remaining calender year, 1924, and $40,000 for the calender year 1925. Unless these funds are secured, the present high standard of our state university cannot be maintained.

"We have visited the state college of agriculture and we are gratified at the excellent condition in which we find every department of this institution.

"The courses of study offered by this institution are in keeping with the industrial needs of the state, and are proving of great economic value to the farming interest of Georgia.

"The efforts of Doctor Soule and his associates are focused upon the agricultural problems of our farmers, and in the development of new channels of revenue which are always accessible to those interested; such as animal husbandry in all of its allied forms, soil analysis, improved seeds, and expert information in special crops through the medium of extension work.

Increase In Students.

"The marvelous growth of the student body as evidenced by the fact that 147 of the 160 counties in Georgia are represented, is convincing proof of the prosperity and growth of the college, and of the high and valuable appreciation in which said institution is held by the public.

"Your committee regrets to report that there is a gradual reduction in the amount of the federal appropriation of the rehabilitation fund; therefore, we recommend that the honorable board of trustees strenuously endeavor to secure an added appropriation from the state sufficient to offset this reduction, in order that the present salary schedule for administrative officers and teaching staff be maintained.

"Education in the science of agriculture which has been sadly neglected in Georgia until the establishment of this college, is as important as that of any other course of study offered by the university; therefore, we recommend that the budget of Doctor Soule, as suggested by him, be carried out in toto. Especially do we recommend the purchase of the negro property which is adjacent to the property of the college, and which is near the girls' dormitory.

State Does Little.

"During the 17 years existence of this institution, comparatively little has been done by the state in furnishing funds with which to erect the buildings which are now on the ground; the greater part of the funds having been secured from the sale of products from the farm, dairy, poultry, nurseries, etc., and from personal donations. Therefore, we wish to congratulate most heartily and sincerely, Dr. Soule, upon his wonderful organizing ability in securing funds from private individuals sufficient with which to erect the Camp Wilkins buildings.

"For the protection of the excellently-kept property of the state college of agriculture, we wish to recommend that the honorable board of trustees immediately provide for the services of a day and a night watchman.

"Georgia should be profoundly grateful to Dr. Soule, by whose loyal devotion and untiring efforts in behalf of the college, has placed it on a high plane of excellence and efficiency second to no institution of like character in the southern states. Therefore, we commend Dr. Soule and the state college of agriculture to the most favorable and liberal consideration of your honorable board of trustees.

"We feel that our report would be incomplete without expressing our thanks and appreciation to those who have so courteously and wisely aided us in our efforts to become acquainted with the conditions of the university. Our beloved chancellor has added much to the pleasure and worth of our visit, and we believe his influence over the students is one of the greatest assets of the university.

"Raymond I. Knox, chairman; Miss Mae Michael, M. L. Parker, Paul J. King and M. D. Collins, secretary."

SEVERE DROUGHTS THREATEN CROPS

Chicago, June 15.—Severe droughts will be felt this summer all through the territory east of the Mississippi river and at least as far south as Tennessee, according to deductions of agricultural experts here, made from facts furnished by Herbert J. Browne, expert long-distance weather forecaster of Washington, D. C.

Official records in parts of the middlewestern states so far this season are said to bear the truth of the prediction. In these sections the average temperatures are three weeks behind normal and a vast territory in the north half of the country and in the northwestern states is now in the early stages of drought.

Small crops have suffered to some extent and the corn crop is reported making an extremely poor start. Meadows and pastures are behind and truck crops are late. The condition of the cotton crop is low.

In view of the prediction of early frosts, soil experts recommend liberal use of fertilizer designed to force corn to early maturity to avoid soft corn.

A SERIOUS SITUATION.

Elsewhere in The Constitution today is the text of the full report made, after six months of careful, detailed study of the Georgia state university situation, by a committee from the board of trustees, appointed by that body early in December, 1923.

The report was unanimously accepted by the trustees.

It is one of the most exhaustive analyses of the distressing situation existing in Georgia's higher educational system that has yet been made, opening up as it does features with which the public is not familiar, and which are of such burning significance that the approaching legislature can not afford to ignore.

Briefly, the finding is that the Georgia university, the brilliant history of which is almost a part of the history of the state, is being literally starved to death by the state, and cannot longer meet the demand on it, and maintain its present standard, unless the general assembly shows a more liberal spirit toward it—and that at once.

That is the plain, unvarnished fact about it; and members of the legislature who read the report—and certainly every member who wants to serve his state unselfishly and with an open mind should read it—will see that the conclusion has been reached through the course of an investigation that has gone to the very bottom of the situation, earnestly, courageously and without bias.

The annual state appropriation to the university is now the same as it was when the student body was less than 400. Today it is 4,700. The increase in male matriculation has been tremendous; and women are now being admitted, with the matriculation being increased every year. Think of it—the same state appropriation for maintenance as when the university had only one student to serve for every four it is serving today.

By reason of this condition, due to a narrow-sighted policy of the assembly, the board of trustees has been stinted to the point of miserliness, and the salary payroll is today pitiably small.

Notwithstanding this the work has been and is being done wonderfully well.

But new conditions have arisen which make a greater appropriation now absolutely necessary, or the continued usefulness of this great institution will be seriously impaired.

Surely there is no real sound-thinking, forward-looking Georgian in the assembly who can see the situation as it is, and refuse the proper support for an institution that means so much to the welfare of the state through the proper training of its young men and women—the citizens of tomorrow.

What are these conditions that make a revised appropriation for the university now absolutely essential?

It will be recalled that three years ago, when the salary list was on a before-the-war basis, when living costs were cheap, with the board having no funds to pay more, under the changed conditions, many professors were about to be lost to other institutions.

At the time a donation from the General Educational Board of $40,000 a year for three years saved the situation.

That donation was made to tide over the situation with the belief that the state of Georgia would continue it.

This fund expired June 1st, this year. It is obvious, therefore, that the state, through the legislature, must step in and provide its continuance, or the consequences will be serious.

The Morrell federal fund of $50,000 is essential, so much so that the university cannot possibly get along without it, and maintain its standard.

And yet the department of interior is now complaining, and unless the terms upon which this fund is provided are met by the state, it cannot possibly be retained.

That is one of the most imperative features attached to the whole situation.

What is the legislature going to do with the University of Georgia? The institution has had no new equipment in generations.

It is marvelous how masterfully it has been conducted in meeting growing demands under the stress of poverty that pinches it from year to year.

Shall this situation continue, and shall the state, blind and deaf to its obligation, let this great, useful system go into discard, or sink to inefficiency through lack of support?

Surely Georgians are too proud, too far-seeing, too resourceful for that.

The legislature meets shortly and then the answer will be written.

This special committee's finding goes into the details of student body department, service, faculty, curriculum—indeed all of the features associated with university service and management.

Every Georgian will have a deeper regard for the university by having read it, and it is worthy of note that the report of the Board of Visitors, published today, corroborates every statement made in the special committee's report.

MYSTERY OF LIFE.

A prominent minister was recently quoted as saying that the microscope should be smashed.

What he meant was that the researches of science are destroying the mystery of life and therefore taking away from religion one of its chief attractions for the human mind. From the dawn of intelligence upon the earth mystery has appealed powerfully to the imagination, and therefore, on account of its pulling power, religions of all kinds — savage and enlightened — pagan and Christian—have attached great value to it.

In the course of human progress many old and cherished mysteries have been wiped out, but new and more wonderful ones have appeared on the ever-expanding horizon and today the lure of the unknown is more potent and more enchanting than ever before.

It is to be hoped that the minister quoted is not representative of any considerable group of religious leaders. His theory put into practice would seek to stifle thought, check progress and turn the minds of men backward to the darkness and gloom of the medieval past.

No amount of scientific investigation can destroy the mystery of life. This mystery broadens and deepens with each forward step, and instead of advancing knowledge destroying mystery, gives to it the thrill of reality and invests it with a new and profound dignity.

As to the values which the element of mystery has contributed to religions in the past or may contribute in the future, thinking minds are likely to differ, but there is not much room for divergence of opinion on one thing and that is that the path of progress must be lighted by the searchlight of knowledge.

The great fundamentals of religion—love, mercy and fair play—are eternal and cannot be destroyed by the microscope or anything which men can make. The piercing light of all the knowledge in the world focused on these virtues serves only to give them added lustre.

In the past nameless harm has been done by seeking to set a limit to human thought — by driving down an iron stake upon which was hung this warning: "Thus far and no farther."

It is a fundamental law of life that nothing can stand still. Water confined becomes stagnate; put an iron band around a tree and it dies. Let the mind of man stop thinking and swiftly would follow decay and death.

But the functioning of the mind—the yearning for knowledge and the quest for new thoughts—cannot be stopped. It is like a great river, which may be obstructed and turned aside, but which seeks and finds outlets elsewhere and flows ever onward.

In its march towards the sun-lit heights of the future, humanity may cast aside some of its old and worn-out machinery — machinery which at one stage of the journey rendered a valuable service. Old temples may be pulled down or deserted and the unknown Father may be called by new and strange names, but there is no more danger of advancing knowledge destroying the basic mystery of life than there is in the spray from a fire hose washing the stars from the Milky Way.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

CONSERVATION OF BABY DOPE.

A grandmother wrote me recently that of the three children she had raised none had ever tasted castor oil until the baby of one of the daughters was a week old, and then some doctor up and prescribed a beaker of it for the young mother. This rare grandmother said that she had used rhubarb in place of castor oil. The aromatic syrup of rhubarb is a perfect substitute for castor oil in any circumstances.

But, folks, have a heart. There is seldom good reason for starting the baby on the medicine habit. It is a deplorable mistake to assume that a baby just naturally has to have colic or indigestion or costiveness or medicine. Once in a hundred cases it might be unfair to deprive an infant of medicine for the relief of colic or an overload of food or costiveness, but as a general rule the baby's need for any such medicines or the parents' notion that he needs such medicines may be ascribed to improper feeding or improper care, and it is manifestly unfair to the helpless baby, not to mention the harm done, to inflict upon him medicine or other treatment for such mistakes of the parents or others responsible for the baby's care.

As a health maxim I should formulate this rule for those who have babies at their mercy:

Never give a baby the first dose of medicine unless by the doctor's order.

The three conditions I mentioned—colic, indigestion and costiveness—are the usual excuses for starting babies on the medicine habit, and the greater the ignorance or neglect of parents and others having the care of babies, in regard to the feeding and care of babies, the more frequently are these excuses advanced. This comes doubly hard on the baby—he must suffer not only the improper feeding and lack of care or improper care, but also the pernicious effects of the nostrums or dope inflicted upon him in the vain endeavor to remedy these ill effects.

I shall try to present in a series of articles the important points which, as it seems to me, are least understood by parents and others with babies in their care, and endeavor to show the influence of improper feeding and improper care upon the occurrence of colic, indigestion and costiveness, particularly costiveness or constipation, for that is the excuse for most of the harmful doping.

First it should be more clearly understood that a food which agrees perfectly with the baby is not necessarily the right food for the baby, for there are many food formulas, both proprietary and home made, which seem to "agree" perfectly but which are nevertheless entirely inadequate for the proper nourishment of the baby. This notion that if the mother can only find a food which the baby will take readily and seem to digest without difficulty, all is well, leads to grave consequences in many cases, the least of which is costiveness or constipation. It often happens that for a while at least the food or formula which the baby should have doesn't seem to "agree" and on that ground, be it sufficient or not, the mother changes the formula or "tries" some other food—to the detriment of the baby's welfare.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. M'INTYRE

New York, June 15.—A page from the diary of a modern Samuel Pepys: Early up and a breakfast of corn beef hash and sat about in a torpor albeit I would liefer eat my fill and laze through the day than eat sparingly and tire with toil.

This day being my fourth without smoking I showed a weakness by lighting a pipe and so to stroll with Verne Porter and we began to fashion limericks although I fear many not graceful enough for print but great fun just the same.

On the way home a gentleman in a fine limousine hailed me and invited me to ride and forsooth I did and we had driven quite a space before he saw he mistook me for another, but it developed he had once written me a letter and we parted good friends.

Dinner this night at Editor Keats Speed's house with my wife and all fell to playing bridge while Keats and I discoursed on this, that and the other. So home and to bed.

Patricia Salmon, who was puffed into the Follies by newspapermen attending the Shelby, Mont., prize fight, has returned to the tent shows. Patricia joined up with a circus. She had been used to the hard-boiled atmosphere of the mining camps but she said life was not so recklessly lived as it was among the stage door Johns with high hats who trail the Follies girls.

At the corner of Pell and Mott streets, in Chinatown, the village bulletin board still fulfills its old time function of announcing in vertical Chinese writing the happenings of interest to residents of the district. At noon and at six in the evening the bulletin board writer gives the news of the day. It is one of the last customs of old Chinatown to prevail. A few, however, do go to the Joss House daily—workshipers who place cups of tea and morsels of food for their dead before the high gilt altar.

Broadway has grown excited by news that a private detective is to print a volume of the mash notes of great men. It will contain notes he has purloined in his gum-shoe exploits along shady paths. He is said to have many incriminating epistles from high places. While there are many prominent men foolish enough to write silly letters to chance acquaintances it is not the general rule. Most of the so-called love affairs about which Broadway prattles concern second rate chorus girls and third rate stockbrokers.

It develops that postal employees borrow more money at usurious interest rates than any other class of men in New York. The truth is these ever faithful employees find it almost impossible to meet current expenses on their small pay. Hundreds run elevators, address envelopes and act as theater ushers after the day's work is done. The prevailing wage for the 10,000 mail carriers in New York is $1,800 a year. It takes at least one-third of this for rent and that leaves about $3 a day to meet current expenses.

Strangely enough the mail carrier rarely complains of his lot. He has a certain dignity about him that few other uniformed employees have. He is sober, industrious and as a rule rears a large family. He deserves better treatment.

Reflection convinces me no public servant spreads so much joy as the man who delivers the mail. Most letters are pleasant—despite the batch that arrives the first of the month.

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Uncle Sam Young Gallant.

Here's love of country for you. The land of the free looked so good to the wistful blue eyes of Elin Anderson, young Swedish woman, that she saved all she could earn, going without new clothes or entertainment, for three long years. She scrubbed, dusted, worked in a laundry and answered doorbells. Elin entered the United States by way of Canada. She got a job but shortly afterwards a fellow countryman told her that she was in danger of deportation for having entered the country illegally. He could fix things and she would have to put up a bond of $3,000. He would advance the money and she was to pay him every cent she earned. Elin was willing enough. In all she saved and scraped $2,500 in three years. But finally she could stand it no longer, she needed new clothes and she told her "friend." This cunning gentleman went a step further, forged a subpoena, ordering Elin to appear in a federal court preparatory to deportation. She came to court with the subpoena in her hand. She told the district attorney and he assured her that Uncle Sam was not such a bad fellow. He would speak to Uncle Sam about her. Now Elin may stay in the country and her friend is in a cell. She also got her savings back.

Lessen Danger Of Death.

There is nothing the average person dreads so much as being put to sleep for an operation. And then the secret dread that the operation will be unsuccessful and that the patient will die. A new important medical invention brought to the attention of the medical association's conference in Chicago lessens the danger for persons while under anaesthetic. A chart records the bloods pressure at fewminute intervals, showing the progress of the patient and his approach to a state of shock, most fatal in operations. The chart keeps the patient within the safety zone, so to speak. The wavelike movements of the heart are recorded photographically, even while the patient is asleep during an operation. Medical science knows now from minute to minute what is happening to the patient while under narcose, through this new method. Medical science is ever more becoming worthy of the name of being the greatest factor toward human happiness and welfare.

Reds Find Great Treasure.

M. Lunacharsky, one of Europe's ablest museum curators and a man, with a definite conception of art, has stumbled upon some important discoveries. Immense vaults, hidden for centuries by walls of masonry, built underground, have been discovered under the Kremlin in Moscow and Lunacharsky feels certain that the vaults and crypts contain the collected art treasures and immense library of Czar Ivan the Terrible. During the latter years of his life this cruel and insane mixture of Mongol and Tatar became obsessed with the idea that people wanted to rob him of his collections of books, manuscripts and old Slavonic and Byzantine art treasures. So he conceived the idea of building subterranean chambers and employed a small army of workmen to build the rooms for him. After the underground museum had been built, Ivan ordered the workmen murdered, so that none but himself knew of its location. The vaults have been discovered. Among the collection are said to be some of the oldest Christian manuscripts, collected by Ivan's ancestors—books, documents, pieces of sculpture and paintings of immense value for a study of old Slavonic history and cultural status.

France Conforms To European Thought.

M. Edouard Herriot, former mayor of Lyons, is now premier of the great French republic. On Sunday he stood shaking hands in the Elysee palace with Doumergue, the new president. Two socialists in the very room where Louis XIV, "Roi Soleil" and last absolute monarch of France, pronounced the words that made him linger in history, "L'etat, c'est moi!" (I am the state). Herriot is not the first socialist premier of France. Briand had that distinction, but the latter was charged by his party with unorthodox wanderings from the true road of Marxist economics. The trend of world opinion, especially in Europe, is in the direction of moderate socialism, for the present at least. In Denmark the socialists are at the helm, in Germany they control the reichstag, in Great Britain they have come to power. It's the same way in Norway and Sweden, while in Holland and Belgium they are within sight of power. That's the swing of the pendulum after the war.

Grave Situation In Levant.

Nothing yet in American newspapers about the situation in the near east and the Mediterranean. Italy is occupying sections of Asia Minor and her acts are being construed by Mustapha Kemal as tantamount to a declaration of war. This wily Turk is watching the situation. He wants to find out whether behind the diplomatic maneuvers of Signor Mussolini there is not a concerted action by France, Britain and Italy for the actual redivision of the Levant. Kemal knows full well that when he drove King Constantine's army into the sea this was not to be the last encounter with would-be conquerors in Asia Minor. And so he has strengthened the army. But Mussolini has his eyes on the fertile valleys of Anatolia. No longer are his immigrants pouring into the American melting pot. Now is a good chance to make another blow for the great empire of his dreams. Vienna newspapers call the situation exceedingly grave. It's such a serene, peaceful summer. It makes the good Viennese think back of the summer of 1914.

Infinite Is Truth.

What mystery is this world we are living in. We talk about eternity and limitless space, immortality and God. The one moment some great thinker comes with a definite rounded-off conception of the universe, but the riddle remains. Now comes Dr. E. A. Tyler, of Philadelphia, with the declaration that the atom is not by any means the ultimate thing in nature. The atom, he says, is a minute solar system composed of so many protons and electrons. Some day another man will tell us that an electron is a complete solar system. After all we have progressed little beyond the stage of St. Paul, who exclaimed that we see things through a glass darkly, and even great scientists of our day repeat the saying of Socrates: "We know that we know nothing."

:: SERMONS TO LIVE BY ::

BY ELAM FRANKLIN DEMPSEY

Text: "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good."—I. Thess. 5:21.

This is an optimistic text, it believes there is something "good" in the midst of much that is otherwise in the new ideas, inventions, customs, manners which swarm about us.

But it is discriminatingly optimistic, for it bids us "prove all things" so that, having eliminated the worthless or the bad, we shall hold fast only that which is good.

A brilliant churchman has scathingly pointed out the folly of an unwise mental hospitality in the following statement: "A lolling mind is no more to be desired than a lolling mouth."

Let us be thankful for the intense mental life of this day in which we live, with its intellectual inquisitiveness, its daring struggle with speculative problems, its ventures into the properties of matter and laws of nature, its searching into the occult laws of interrelated minds, its probing of the deeps of individual mind.

Much error, half-baked thought, hasty generalization is inevitable, but how much better, even with these disadvantages, is this mental life and stir than would be intellectual stupor and stagnation.

For sound growth, our religious thinking is in especial need of the wisdom of our text.

Industrial Bureau Favors $70,000,000 Road Bonds

Editor Constitution: Under the caption, "$40,000,000 State Bonds for Good Roads Defended," in this morning's issue, you were good enough to quote from some remarks I made yesterday.

I do not, however, recall mentioning any specific amount of money for this issue, in these remarks. At the last analysis, this is something for the legislature to determine.

As you know, however, from the clipping from The Constitution of May 31, the Georgia Industrial Bureau believes that the entire state highway system should be completed and paved with the least possible delay. A bond issue of $70,000,000 will accomplish this, with the present gasoline tax, and do it without one cent of either income, property, or any other kind of additional tax. There is so little reason for not providing these bonds, and providing enough of them while we are at it, that we are advocating a $70,000,000 complete-the-system issue, instead of the partial issue mentioned in this morning's paper.

Will you be good enough to make our position clear for us?

Managing Director, Georgia Industrial Bureau.

Advice From the Featherbed Isn't Helping Much

Urges Passage of Laws To Reduce Accidents At Railroad Crossings

Editor Constitution: In practically every paper or periodical you read there is some article on how to save this crop or that, or how to market this or that article to the best advantage, all of which, of course, is splendid, however, in our eagerness to make money and accumulate property, our people of today have given but little of their time and thought to the saving of human life and limb: "For what is a man profited, if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul (life)?"

During the past 25 years there has grown up within our country an industry almost unparalleled for the rapidity and extent of its development. Starting from practically zero point in 1898, the automotive industry has advanced to a production of 4,086,997 automobiles and trucks in the year just past. Of this number there were 3,694,237 passenger cars. On December 31, 1923, there were actually registered in continental United States 16,444,373, or an equivalent of one automobile to every seven people. Our own state of Georgia is not quite so automobile mad as some of the other states and shows that there is only one automobile to every seventeen people.

In 1898 there were 657 people killed at railroad crossings. During the six years ending December 31, 1922, there were 10,911 persons killed and 29,591 injured at railroad highway crossings. The interstate commerce commission in its report of 1923, for the one year alone, shows that 2,246 persons were killed and 6,207 injured at railroad grade crossings. A total of 13,157 killed and 35,798 injured in the past seven years. These figures are sufficient to indicate the serious increase in such deaths and injuries to impress upon us the need for action towards their curtailment. The need for their modification or reduction appeals to us from several angles; namely, that of humanity, public duty, pride and cost.

Several Remedies.

There are several ways to handle the problems of accident prevention on highway crossings, chief of which are engineering, education and legal process.

On the 31st day of December, 1921, there were 252,022 grade level crossings over class 1 railroads operating in the United States, after deducting 485 crossings which were eliminated that year. The elimination of crossings by the abolition of grades is an absolute solution of the problem. However, we are instantly confronted with two insurmountable elements—time and expense. It would take six hundred years to remove the crossings at the rate that they are being eliminated at the present time. Competent engineers have estimated it would cost in the rural and urban districts $50,000 per crossing, and in the city districts many times this amount. By use of simple arithmetic it will be shown it would take $12,500,000,000. It is almost impossible for us to conceive of what this means. The allies reparation demands of Germany for all damages inflicted in any way, shape or form in the recent war is $7,500,000,000 for six years of horrible warfare. The cost to eliminate all crossings would exceed this amount by two-thirds.

To try and do more than a gradual elimination even if the counties did their part, would bankrupt both counties and railroads, and by extra taxation and increased transportation costs would work a hardship on the people, for it is they after all who would have to pay the bill.

There is much that the counties can do in eliminating obstructions and useless road or highway signs, and the railroads should not cease their study and adoption of warning devices until the highest perfection has been reached. They should keep up with the latest and best equipment, such as whistles, bell and headlight. By education, the automobile driver should exercise the highest degree of care, and his passengers—whether paid passengers or guests, should insist that he drive his car accordingly.

Railway Association Campaign.

Most of you are familiar with the campaign which the American Railway association has conducted for the past two or three years—that is, their "Cross Crossings Cautiously" campaign. There is no doubt that this campaign has resulted in much good. By legal process it has been found that in the states that have passed the "Stop-Look and Listen" law, the accidents have been greatly reduced. In North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Mississippi, Tennessee and other states they report that the number of accidents have been decreased 50 to 75 per cent.

The construction or erection of barriers to view at or near railroad crossings should be prohibited. There should be established at uniform distance from such crossings a standard sign along the highway indicating approach to railroad crossings, and these signs should be standard, eliminating the hundreds of advertising devices now used along our highways. There should be a standard and uniform sign to indicate every public railroad crossing. It should be forbidden to mutilate, alter or change any railroad crossing sign. Commercial advertising of every character should be absolutely forbidden between the advance sign along the highway and the railroad track.

It should be made illegal to simulate or represent for commercial purposes any crossing or approach sign. Authorities having power to issue licenses should be empowered and required to decline renewal for substantial period of time in cases of intoxication, recklessness, incompetency, defiance of legal regulations or frequency of mishaps.

The Georgia public service commission report for 1923 shows as follows:

Steam Railroad Accidents.

	1923 Killed	1923 injured	1922 killed	1922 injured
Passengers .	1	224	5	175
Employees .	31	1580	23	1133
Others	110	235	84	172

From our childhood we are taught to fear and obey the law, and when the state of Georgia passes a law similar to the other states above named, we will have gone a long ways toward the elimination of crossing accidents.

Mississippi, according to the latest census report.

Where did the continent of Europe get its name?

According to the researches of various scholars the name is derived from the old Assyrian word Ereb, "sunset" or "west," which was applied to Greece to distinguish that region from Asia Minor, which was designated as Asu (sunrise or east). These names were finally extended, the one from Greece over all Europe, and the other from Asia Minor over all Asia.

The latest statistics available are for 1923 and showed 18,853,000.

How can one keep ants and caterpillars from climbing shade trees?

Place a wide band of cotton batting around the tree at some convenient height and fasten it to the tree with wire. The edges of the batting, protruding from underneath the wire, when fluffed, present an impassable barrier to any type of crawling insect or small animal, the cotton not affording a foothold.

Is lump sugar taken with the fingers?

If tongs are provided, they should be used.

Why is it that the different races speak different languages?

The Biblical account of the confusion of tongues at the Tower of Babel is found in the eleventh chapter of Genesis. The scientific theory is that man slowly evolved speech as he emerged from the brute, the forms of speech differing with the different racial origins.

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE STRAIGHT PATH.

"In the middle of life's journey," once wrote Dante, "I found myself in a darkling wood, where the traces of the straight path were lost."

Those who have lived to tell of the experience say that the sensations which come when one realizes one is lost in a great forest are indescribable in their tensity of terror.

Many a man has faced shot and shell with less fear.

To be lost thus and then suddenly to come upon several paths, each leading in a different direction—which one will lead to safety?

How many times we all experience the feeling that we are lost—and feel that hope, somehow, has ceased to light our way.

If we stand still we are sure to perish. If we give up all hope, if we surrender without thinking, without believing, without determining to do our best to the last ditch, then of course all is lost forever, so far as we are concerned.

But the great God never meant that a man should be less than all of which he is capable.

And so when we find ourselves "in a darkling wood, where the traces of the straight path" are lost, the least we can do is to "keep on a-keepin' on."

Let us hunt out the straight path. Let us stay within its confines. Let us pray for the light that we may tread confidently ahead.

In one of Milton's poems I find this:

"What in me is dark, illuminate,
"What is low, raise and support!"

MOIST PLATFORM TOUTED AS WISDOM

Washington, June 15.—The democratic party can win this year if it puts a "moist" plank in its platform, according to Captain W. H. Stayton, head of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

Failure of the republican convention to take other than an "on the fence" attitude on the wet and dry question insures defeat for the Coolidge-Dawes ticket if the democratic party takes a liberal attitude on it, Stayton said.

"The framers of the republican platform made a brave but vain attempt to please both wet and dry factions by riding the fence," he continued. "If the democratic generals are wise at the convention of their party they will take advantage of the action of the grand old party, and will be more liberal, thereby assuring success at the coming November election.

Cites Raids on G. O. P. States.

"Our political men are daily sending in to national headquarters reports of dissatisfaction with the Volstead act. Defeat of a number of dry candidates in the primaries tends to demonstrate the attitude of the people on the question.

"With a modification plank, the democrats would, no doubt, carry New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Ohio, Illinois, Missouri, Maryland and California, the majority of which are normally republican states, but the voters of which have a very intense antipathy of the Volstead law, properly feeling, as they do, that it interferes with their rights as American citizens.

Dixie Defection Bunk.

"The claim of the anti-saloon league that southern states will support dry republicans in preference to wed democrats is ridiculous. The southern states have always gone democratic and despite the fact that the feeling against the prohibition law is not as strong as in the north and middle western states, they will stay in the democratic column.

"There is also reason to believe that the democrats would carry Michigan, Montana and Washington with a moist plank.

"It boils down to this: If democratic leaders are wide-awake and will take advantage of the almost nation-wide demand for modification of the Volstead law, there will be another landslide in November, and it won't be for the elephant."

SAY FRANKS' SLAYERS ARE "IRRESPONSIBLE"

that it is right for them to do what might be wrong for an illiterate or more poorly educated person. He believes it is lawful to take human life, in order to know more of death, one of the tests revealed.

Loeb in Better Shape.

Loeb apparently is more able to distinguish right from wrong than Leopold, the psychologists examining him discovered. But he has abnormal traits which have been with him since early childhood. Some of these traits have been responsible for his perversions of mind and body. According to the doctors he is the victim of a well-defined disease, an ailment long understood in medical circles, but one which the law defines as a crime.

This disease, some of the physicians retained by the families of the two boys declared, is subject to treatment and may be cured. However, persons who have the peculiar form of ailment Loeb possesses need restraint, supervision and treatment by mental and physical specialists who understand dealing with abnormalities.

Are Curious Cases.

In their discussion of the complexities of Loeb and Leopold the physicians agreed that the two youths constituted the most amazing pathological cases that ever had come to their attention. Some of those who were present at the tests came to the conclusion that the two slayers were not and never had been insane, as insanity is defined by law. These doctors, however, were of the opinion that any one of several major mental and physical abnormalities noted in the two boys would have been sufficient to have led to their strange crime. For this reason, the physicians agreed, the slayers were not responsible for the act and do not deserve hanging, but instead, should be confined for the rest of their lives in an institution where they would be watched and treated.

To Be More Examinations.

However, one doctor said that in his opinion both boys might be cured of their oddities and, that, if they were cured, they could be restored to society as useful citizens. He was of the opinion that no cure could possibly be effected under four or five years.

The examinations of the two slayers are by no means ended. Their physicians, new psychologists and persons skilled in treating mental and physical derangement will question them and subject them to tests with apparatus. The two-day examination, which terminated Saturday night, was merely a preliminary conducted under the direction of Clarence S. Darrow, defense counsel, to ascertain whether an insanity plea which he intends to advance would hold up in court.

The tests, Darrow is known to have remarked, were "eminently satisfactory."

To Report Today.

Dr. Karl Bowman, of Boston and New York, supervised the tests. He is one of the most noted alienists and gland experts in the United States. Dr. H. S. Hulberts, a Chicago alienist, assisted him. Two other physicians were understood to have been consulted. They were Dr. Paul G. Dick and Dr. J. J. Moore, both of Chicago. In addition to these physicians, there was a retinue of assistants present at the examinations.

The alienists will make their formal report to Darrow Monday and this report, according to the physicians, will not be made public, for on it Darrow will base his defense strategy.

Oxygen Tanks Used.

Oxygen tanks were used during the tests of both Leopold and Loeb Saturday, but for what purpose, the physicians would not disclose. It is known, however, that Dr. Dick tested the two for their ability to assimilate nourishment. He installed an intricate apparatus which recorded the assimilation of various kinds of foods that were fed the two slayers. Apparatus used in the tests included long needles, peculiar shaped surgical instruments, used in physical examinations, several kinds of stethoscopes, blood pressure recorders, two microscopes and any number of instruments for testing heart pulsations and hearing lung noises.

One of the phychiatrists used an instrument to determine emotional reactions of the two boys. Another gave them tests designed to show their sense of balance. Their eyes were carefully examined. Over one hour was consumed in the examination of their teeth.

Crowe Is Undaunted.

Despite the unprecedented preparations made by alienists and the boys' wealthy families to prove the two killers were not responsible for their crimes, State's Attorney Crowe appeared to be unruffled.

"All this elaborate preparation, this fitting up of cells as a laboratory, this retention of high priced alienists, these examinations in jail and the announcement that more are coming—these things ought to dispel any doubts which may remain that these slayers intend to try to make the jury think they're crazy so that they will escape the gallows.

"The fact is that these boys are and have been perfectly sane, knew what they were doing and knew the penalty for their crimes. They simply thought they had such superior intelligence that they could not be taught.

State to Have Tests.

"We will have an alienist for every one the defence introduces. We will, if necessary, put numerous witnesses on the stand who have been associated with these two boys for years and who have told us that these boys were anything but insane."

The chemical tests and X-ray tests are still to come, according to the medico-legal staff supporting Loeb and Leopold's efforts to cheat the gallows. The X-ray will be used in further tests to determine gland sizes and positions. Dr. Bowman personally will make these tests. He is one of the greatest authorities on glands and their effect on mentality, and is also the highest priced gland specialist.

Dr. Bowman has told some of his associates that thyroid disease might have been responsible for the eccentricities of Loeb and Leopold. He is conducting a series of tests to ascertain whether the thyroid gland is functioning properly with both youths. If he discovers that gland troubles are at the base of the two youths' difficulties they will be treated for what is known as hypo-thyroidism. In fact, this ailment may be one of the links in the chain of defense being forged by Darrow.

Thirst Not Dulled.

But a possible gland trouble is only a small portion of the defects established or suspected in the two intellectual killers. The tests are said to have definitely established that both Loeb and Leopold have over-developed sex complexes with well defined perversion manias. It has not been clearly established by the physicians exactly what forms these manias assumed, but a doctor has said that they were both unusual and numerous.

Even in the county jail, after days of confinement and with the knowledge that they are soon to face trial for murder, Leopold and Loeb have not lost their interest in the bizarre and erotic, according to prison officials. Some interesting conversations which the two slayers have carried on with other prisoners and even, it is alleged, with a keeper, have been overheard. The boys have asked for books of the type that led them to decide to try out some experiments in physical torture or perversion described by Italian authors of the seventeenth century.

Prison walls have not taken away Loeb's and Leopold's pseudo-intellectual interests. The only difficulty has been that they have not found any prisoners interested enough in volumes to talk about sex problems to listen to them. Their efforts to discuss perversion treatises with some fellow-prisoners have been greeted with derison. In fact, some of Leopold's and Loeb's jail colleagues refuse to have anything to do with them.

The two slayers attended a vaudeville show in the prison Sunday. Leopold, in the front row, seemed to enjoy every bit of the entertainment. He frequently laughed and applauded. Loeb also laughed, but he was not so demonstrative as his associate.

HERRIOT TO GRANT GENERAL AMNESTY

celebration had been planned a long time before it was known that M. Doumergue would be a candidate for the presidency; it was arranged to celebrate the anniversary of his thirty years of political life. So tonight's presentation of a bas-relief plaque to the president took on a double significance.

First Council Today.

M. Herriot and his ministers will hold their first cabinet council at 10 o'clock tomorrow to discuss the ministerial declaration which will be read in the senate and chamber at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The first ministerial council at Elysee will be held tomorrow afternoon, with President Doumergue presiding, to agree upon the final text of the declaration.

Owing to the premier's selection of General Nollet as minister of war, even the most rabid of the opposition press seems to have been disarmed, and all are inclined to give the new president and premier every opportunity to make good and nothing but friendly encouragement.

In delivering his first speech in his official capacity to the memory of Emile Zola at the unveiling of the monument of Zola today, Premier Premier Herriot said:

"The government of the republic bows with respect before this bronze where the affection of a fraternal genius has fixed Zola's great figure. In attending this ceremony the government wishes to prove that the men composing it have preserved the remembrance of their origins.

Injustice to One Hurts All.

"They remember the great and grave moral crisis which threw them into a public debate. Convinced of the necessity of uniting the political with the moral laws, we remain faithful to the doctrines which we have defended. We here honor a powerful writer who reared himself above the second half of the nineteenth century."

M. Herriot recalled Zola's role in the Dreyfus affair and his saying: "When one lone man suffers injustice it is the whole of society that is hurt," and continued: "Zola was combated in the name of pretended patriotism. But it is not thus that we should consider France. France is for us the highest moral personality in the world. That is how we represent her, that is how we will defend her. There is no really efficacious justice unless it is tempered by benevolence.

"Zola has been called a realist. We call him an idealist . . . one who raises humanity above ordinary mediocrity. Many times hereafter we will return to seek our inspiration in his work."

Many liberal societies made the pilgrimage this afternoon to Zola's tomb in the Pantheon. This evening a commemorative ceremony was held in the Trocadero, at which actors from the state's theaters read passages from Zola's works and played an act adapted from "L'Assammoir."

HERRIOT STRESSES NOLLET APPOINTMENT.

Paris, June 15.—Premier Herriot, replying to a Matin reporter today relative to the selection of his cabinet, lays stress on the choice of the minister of war.

"The competency of General Nollet is unquestionable," he said. "He knows better than anyone the present military condition of Germany. I desire that the fullest significance be given to the appointment of General Nollet. Germany is now engaged in carrying out tactics similar to those after the peace of Tilsit in 1807, raising a large army camouflaged by gymnastic associations.

"Our cabinet is animated by a kindly spirit toward Germany and we are ready to assist to the best of our ability the young German democracy, but we display merciless severity to the German nationalists. We have to up hold France's rights as well as those of the democracy of the world."

GERMANS BITTER AT HONOR FOR NOLLET.

Berlin, June 15.—The presence of General Nollet as minister of war in the Herriot cabinet suggests to the reactionary party organs that the German democrats once more have been duped and that the new French ministry holds out no promise of being a government of "peace and understanding."

General Nollet, who during his activities in Germany as head of the inter-allied control commission became anathema to the nationalists, is stigmatized by the pan-German and anti-Semitic Detusche Zeitung as "a shameless militarist and war-baiter." The newspaper viciously denounces General Nollet for his alleged continuous provocation and the system of espionage which he carried on in connection with his official duties.

To Shed No Tears.

The Deutsche Zeitung admits that it will not shed a tear on the occasion of General Nollet's departure from Germany. Its only regret, it declares, is that he is to be permitted to return to France without having "received a fitting reward for all the meanness heaped on the German people for the past five years."

The Kreuz Zeitung, organ of the nationalists, characterizes General Nollet as "Germany's most irritating foe." This journal says it expects little in the way of an understanding with Germany's western neighbor now that Nollet has a seat and a vote in the new French cabinet.

Vorwaerts Not Pessimistic.

Vorwaerts, organ of the socialists, casts a more auspicious horoscope for future Franco-German relations. It professes to see in the make-up of the Herriot ministry the infinite indignation of the French and a yearning for new leaders and new methods. "This rejuvenating process," says Vorwaerts, "is destined to prove a blessing to France and the rest of Europe."

Vorwaerts declares to view the appearance of General Nollet in the cabinet as an ill-omen. It even goes so far as to stamp him a true democrat whose intimate friends even assert is a pacifist at heart, and now that he has succeeded in disarming Germany is equally determined to initiate disarmament in France.

BRITISH LEGATION IS UNDER SIEGE

if Cummins does not leave. The Chilean minister is now holding conferences with other members of the diplomatic corps here in an effort to find a way out of the situation.

The foreign office, in a statement issued to the press, says that Cummins, who was in charge of the archives at the legation, had no diplomatic position, but was responsible for Britain failure to recognize Mexico, due to the fact that he made false and vilifying statements to the British government regarding conditions here.

Discourteous in Notes.

He also sent notes to the Mexican government, the statement says, which were invariably discourteous and couched in violent terms. Two years ago, in view of these facts, Mexico advised Britain that he was "persona non grata," and suggested that he be withdrawn.

No action was taken on the request, however, and on January 15, Mexico advised the British consul that the government would suspend all correspondence with Cummins. At the same time it was suggested that the consul transmit to London two discourteous notes which the government had received from the official.

The foreign office statement says that both these notes showed disrespect for the Mexican government.

Recently, the statement continues, Cummins prevented the government from reaching an arrangement with a Mrs. Evans, who endeavored to obtain a large sum from Mexico for expropriated lands. In connection with this he made false reports the statement says, and sent the Mexican government another discourteous note.

On May 3 Mexico again advised England that Cummins was not wanted. The British government replied that it saw no reason for withdrawing him.

Mexico answered that for the sake of the dignity of the country Britain should withdraw the statements Cummins had made, but, according to the foreign office statement, Britain upheld the representative.

Mexico Is Affronted.

The statement says that Cummins thereafter persisted in his attitude, which is described as an affront to the Mexican government.

Seeing no solution of the problem, Mexico then advised Cummins to leave within eight days. When he did not comply the government dictated measures making his expulsion effective.

The foreign office statement says in conclusion that Mexico has complied with all diplomatic rules, and has always been disposed to renew relations with Britain providing the British send Mexico an adequate representative who will observe diplomatic custom.

The siege of the legation has caused no surprise to members of the British colony here, the majority of whom are frankly on the side of Mexico in the dispute.

and ran into the room where the 30 lay unconscious. Some of the rescuers were overcome and had to be carried out. Oxygen helmets were obtained and with these the rescuers were able to remove the unconscious and dead.

Physicians went to the scene from seven hospitals. Efforts were made to revive Reeb, Faulkner and Obenovich. Their bodies were removed to an undertaking establishment.

The pulmotor was used to revive 22 of those overcome.

According to one of the survivors Faulkner, who had been working near a gas main, suddenly fell over. Reeb, working near him, toppled over a few seconds later.

MRS. M. B. TORBETT DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. M. B. Torbett, 68, of 6 Oxford place, charter member of the Ladies' Memorial association and the Atlanta Pioneer society, died Sunday afternoon at the residence after an extended illness.

Mrs. Torbett had been a citizen of Atlanta since 1859, coming here from Dalton, where she was born in 1856. She was a member of the Episcopal church.

She is survived by her husband, M. B. Torbett, two daughters, Miss Annie Goode Torbett and Mrs. Frank Wilkie; a sister, Mrs. Joseph H. Morgan, and a granddaughter, Calvinia Wilkie.

Funeral services will be held from the residence a 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Dr. C. B. Wilmer will officiate. Interment will be in West View cemetery, with Harry G. Poole in charge.

Signs With Reds.

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 15.—Jack Blott, catcher of the University of Michigan baseball team, and considered by many to be the best back stopper in the Big Ten conference, will report to the Cincinnati Nationals, June 23, he announced today.

WANT MORE TIME ON SCHOOL REPORT

Report of the charter revision committee on the changes proposed for school administration will not be made to council Monday, it was stated Saturday by Councilman W. E. Saunders, chairman. More time will be asked in which to prepare a complete report on all the changes proposed. The Hartsfield plan, to revive the six-commissioners-plan, is to be favored when the committee does report, he said.

The fight to hold up the June finance sheet in protest against the increased water rate was said at city hall Saturday to have been abandoned and after the York motion to reconsider is voted down, the June sheet will be passed up by council.

Every member of the aldermanic board except Alderman Hunter of the Fifth ward has gone on record as not intending to hold the sheet up in the aldermanic board. Alderman Hunter did not declare his position. The June sheet carries with it $300,000 special emergency appropriation to schools.

SAVING IS THE RESULT OF CAREFUL SPENDING

EVERY MAN NEEDS AN ESTATE

and with Life Insurance You Create It at Once

To YOUR well-being and peace of mind, this suggestion is dedicated.

"OF a large number of persons in good health at 30 to 35 years of age, about one half of the total number will live to be 70 years old. And how many of them will be prepared to spend their old age in reasonable comfort and peace? Statistics give a sad answer. The vast majority at 60 or 70 are dependent on others. Because of ill health or failing mind or a decrease in ability, they are obliged to give up their work; or they fail in business, or lose their positions."

WHATEVER COMES,
YOUR LIFE INSURANCE ESTATE
IS SAFE

¶ If you live to old age, your life insurance is there for your comfort.
¶ If you prematurely pass away, your dependents are sustained and sheltered by its protection.

YOUR LIFE INSURANCE ESTATE IS THE ONLY ONE YOU CAN CREATE ON WHICH ALL REMAINING PAYMENTS ARE CANCELLED IF YOU DIE

Dargan, Venable & Hatcher Progressing Rapidly

One of Atlanta's most prominent and progressive insurance agencies is that of Dargan, Venable & Hatcher, Inc., with offices in the Grant building, of which Oscar Venable is president; Milton Dargan, Jr., vice president and treasurer and E. G. Ottley, vice president.

The business was originally founded in 1892 by Cliff C. Hatcher and has continued to grow and prosper during its 32 years of existence, contributing in a material way to the preeminent position Atlanta has come to occupy as an insurance center. The growth of the agency has been constantly along sound and progressive lines with service to their clientele uppermost in their minds, new departments being created as the necessity arose for the convenience of their patrons and to afford for them the best possible protection of their interests.

The insurance department is amply equipped with companies of splendid capacity and enormous financial strength to care for insurance in all its branches and the agency affords unusual service in the prompt handling of claim adjustments.

The life insurance department, under the able management of Walter W. Whitington, is showing a remarkable progress and leads the state of Georgia in business produced for the Travelers Insurance company, one of the strongest companies in the world financially, offering a splendid variety of policy contracts and a most liberal attitude toward the assured.

The loan department is under splendid organization and management, with unlimited financial resources offering intelligent and prompt action and reasonable interest rates on all proposals for high-class residential and improved business properties.

The engineering department is under management of E. C. McGarity, formerly of the Georgia inspection and rating branch of the Southeastern Underwriters' association, offering expert advice on fire protection and the analysis of fire insurance rates, and effecting readjustments which frequently result in substantial premium savings and lessening of fire hazard.

The supervision of accounts is in the capable hands of Fred H. Lee.

With all departments growing with rapid strides, and the splendid cooperative spirit which the agency has developed, the concern has taken its rightful place among the south's leading insurance agencies.

Acree Roofing Co. Guarantees Quality and Good Service

When the city of Atlanta passed an ordinance several years ago to not allow any more wood shingles to be put on the roofs in the inner fire circles of the city it did much to eliminate many of the fires that were so numerous in former years.

The putting on and the recovering of old roofs with fireproof and semi-fireproof roofing material that would meet the requirements of this ordinance called for more expert workmen than in the old days, and one of the most expert men in this line at the ttime was J. O. Acree, who has since established the Acree Roofing company that is now covering roofs in many of the cities in the southeastern states.

This firm is located at 94 Stewart avenue and many of the recent contracts they have completed in Atlanta are The Constitution building, Fisher building, Ponders avenue and Marietta streets; new plant of the Sanitary Dry Cleaning company, Jordan apartments, North Boulevard; Atlanta Flour and Grain company, new building being erected on Spring street viaduct and several other smaller buildings.

This firm will put on or recover any kind of a roof on short notice specializing in tar and gravel, built up asphalt roofing, roll roofing of every description and water proofing material that will stop all leaks. Quality and service guaranteed is the slogan of this firm and all those contemplating having any work of this kind done would do well to give them a ring at West 1858-W.

DIXIE LUMBER CO. GROWING RAPIDLY

The Dixie Lumber company, of 101 Wells street, while it may not be the oldest or biggest lumber plant in the city through the prompt service they are rendering their customers they are making rapid strides in their line and are now furnishing contracts from East Point to Chamblee and from Ingleside to Bolton and making quick deliveries to all parts of Atlanta and vicinity.

In furnishing lumber for "The Home, Sweet Home," as depicted in the original "Home, Sweet Home," by the celebrated author, John Howard Payne, which little building was the central attraction at the recent "Own Your Own Home" exposition held at the auditorium, this firm made thousands of friends and gained many customers.

When the new Morningside subdivision was opened up the Dixie people furnished the lumber for the first building and many homes there since.

When Mr. E. G. Deckner and Mr. C. E. Simmons were seen the past week in regard to the general business outlook in their line they both stated that they were having a big run on doors, windows and both interior and exterior lumber, and their entire force was putting forth their best efforts in getting every order out as quickly as possible.

FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH VERY POPULAR NOW

The hot weather of the past few days is causing thousands of people to accept the invitation of R. J. Spiller and swim with him in the Fountain of Youth across from the ball park.

Swimming parties are being arranged all over town and after once enjoying all the many conveniences of the Fountain of Youth they take advantage of every opportunity to "Swim with Spiller."

This popular bathing pool is one of the finest in the this section and the water is changed every few hours. Those swimming there for the first time are coming back again very soon.

Next to the swimming pool Mr. Spiller has laid out a very nice picnic grounds which he offers to the public free of cost and all those desiring to hold a picnic of any kind there can do so on short notice by communicating with Mr. Spiller or his representative at the Fountain of Youth.

YELLOW CAB CO. ADDING TO SERVICE

Few people realize the splendid service the Yellow Cab company is is rendering the public besides transferring the people from one place to another.

Their information bureau is being enlarged all the time so that they now give the public information on many subjects any hour day or night.

Their telephone is Ivy 1173 and if you want the latest ball score, or know what time it is, where is the big fire, who won the fight, what is the extra out about, how is the weather, what is the latest rules and styles worn at the bathing pools and how quick can you get a cab here, just call them and you will be pleased with the quick service you will receive.

Since this company has begun the transferring of baggage and purchasing tickets they have become very popular with the people, and the public is appreciating the many kinds of good service the Yellow Cab company is rendering them and a large increase in their business is being noted.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ANNEX FOR WAYCROSS CHURCH

Waycross, Ga., June 15.—(Special.) The latest building announced for Waycross is a Sunday school annex for the Central Baptist church. Despite the fact that this is the largest church auditorium in Waycross, it has proved too small for the Sunday school enrollment. Rev. T. T. Davis, formerly of Atlanta, is pastor.

News of Society and Woman's Work

THE CONSTITUTION'S DAILY WOMAN'S MAGAZINE

Features Which Will Interest Every Woman

SLAMS AND SALAAMS

By Louise Dooly

MEN politicians are not always young and beautiful.

But apparently women politicians are expected to be.

In this particular, the veteran newspaper men covering the Cleveland convention paid women at large a subtle, though an unconscious tribute.

Almost without exception these writers commented on the fact that the women delegates were not sweet young things, to delight the eyes of politicians and reporters, but were women of maturity of figure and years.

They note this as if it were a matter of note or as if they had expected the states to send flappers to map out the republican party's program for the next four years.

A subtle compliment, as we remarked before, to the superior and earlier development of the youthful female brain.

* * * *

APOLLOS IN POLITICS.

SPEAKING of Apollos in politics, there is that story of the governor of a certain southern state who had earned the reputation of being the ugliest man in his state.

Whether he was or not, it was another case of giving a dog a bad name. On all occasions he was hanged for it.

He took it with good nature, but one night at a dinner party, the worm turned (to use all the metaphors at once).

Some speaker referred jokingly to the governor's slim claim on good looks, and the governor, with a smile, glanced around him, and remarked quietly that sometimes when he looked on the faces of his friends, he wondered how he could have earned a special distinction for ugliness.

* * * *

BRAINS AND LIPSTICKS.

BUT to get back to women.

How deep is a woman's beauty?

Observe the flapper: the one who is the belle among her kind. Has she always the beauty that lies in regular features, a complexion of peaches and cream? Not at all.

Sometimes it is only, but adequately, the look of "come hither;" or better still, the bud, full of promise for the blooming.

And take the case of the maturer woman.

We saw one coming out from a life long of isolation in a far recess in the mountains, and she bore in her wrinkles and her apathy the appearance of sixty years, but she was thirty.

And standing near her was the isolated woman in another sense: the woman shut out from the real living through indolence, which wealth had exaggerated.

With her wealth and her mere existence in the midst of things, had this second woman preserved her beauty?

Scarcely better than the woman from the hills. The most expensive cosmetics failed to hide the failure of her good looks.

And why?

The reason was the same for both women; their minds were rusty.

Strange, all women do not think of this.

An active mind—and add to this a good digestion—there is nothing so conducive to the kind of skin you love to touch.

How deep, then, is a woman's beauty?

Surely not just skin deep, but all the way to her gray matter.

* * * *

TO CONTRADICT OURSELVES.

AND now for a paradox.

Out in Los Angeles last week there were many thousands of women—and yet nobody can say they were women who do not brain well—who were busily engaged at putting lines into their faces, and they didn't care; for the time, at least.

These were the federated club women at their biennal convention.

They were having the contact of "best minds" in every line of federated club activity—and that ranges from insuring pure milk for the country's babies to improvement in prison conditions.

They were getting information from experts and leaders, men and women, about every kind of job the club women have taken on from making America safe for art to the latest methods in teaching farm girls how to can beans.

* * * *

THE NEWSPAPER VIEWPOINT.

AND those poor reporters, male and female, who were trying to get the news of the convention for the newspapers of the country. We can see them in our mind's eye tearing their hair because there wasn't any news.

Thirteen thousand women assembled for ten days to discuss and plan movements of nation-wide and permanent importance, and yet not a sensation may be in the whole ten days.

Why, the covering of a faculty meeting of the average university would hold more of a kick, when it pronounces against the co-eds smoking on the campus, or some such startling social reform.

Potential sensations at a federated club biennial are seldom allowed to come to a head.

We've been there ourselves and we know. But being a club woman we also understand. The bi-ennials are more for conference and study than for action.

As a club woman, we found them fine. As a reporter, we thought them—well, tough luck.

* * * *

THE HOME FIRES.

BECAUSE the General Federation of Women's clubs holds the great influence it undoubtedly does, a special significance is obliged to attach to a warning which is being voiced by some of the best thinkers among the women writers through the highest class magazines just at this time.

It is a warning, too, that should get a particularly attentive hearing from the women of the south.

Are the organized women leaning dangerously to paternalism?

Are they seeking of the national government the solving of problems which they should rather turn their efforts on their own states to solve?

While they may secure in Washington quicker results possibly through the united effort of the organized women of all the states brought to bear on Washington, are they not getting at the same time results that carry a penalty, in the surrender of state jobs which the state ought to handle?

* * * *

MISPLACED RESPONSIBILITY.

NOW there are movements which we have thought so pressing of solution—like protection of children in industry—that any means seemed to justify the end. And state effort in this line in many sections has so far met obstacles apparently insurmountable.

But if the women of every state put behind those movements for public welfare, education and morality, the same fervor which we believe they feel, but do not back up with all the intensity of effort they would put forward if the problem concerned their own children—

—Then it would not be necessary to turn over matters like the education and the protection of the health of the children to the federal government. It could be properly handled at home.

Nor would it be necessary to leave to congress the making of such laws as determine just how married a man is when he is married in one state and divorced in several others.

* * * *

IN Spain the health authorities, after creating a sentiment against kissing babies, are trying to ban the women's practice of kissing one another. But if we women don't kiss each other, how else may we show in a lady-like manner that we don't like each other?

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Bottles of Medicine.

Always pour medicines from the side of the bottle opposite to the label to avoid the mixture spilling over directions or prescription number.

Silk vs. Cotton.

Use up old spools of silk for basting. Silk can be removed more readily than cotton and leaves no traces where the stitches have been.

Will Make It Tender.

If the boiled meat appears to be tough, add a teaspoonful of cider vinegar to the water. The vinegar will make the meat tender.

Poison!

Carbolic acid sounds so formidable that we dread using it even if we really need it. But one quart of carbolic acid to 20 parts of water is a solution that is guaranteed not to burn.

Flue Protection.

Give the large flue pipe of the furnace a coat of paint each spring and it will protect it from rust and consequent destruction. Remove from furnace, thoroughly clean it, then paint.

FLAG DAY EXERCISES ARE HELD BY ELKS

Impressive services were held Sunday afternoon at Piedmont park by Atlanta Lolge No. 78, B. P. O. E., in celebration of Flag Day. The exercises were held Sunday instead of Saturday by special permission of J. G. McFarland, grand exalted ruler. The program was presided over by Judge L. F. McClelland, exalted ruler of the Atlanta order.

Exercises were participated in by the Elk's Royal Purple band, Elk's Purple Devil patrol, Atlanta lodge degree team, and the Elk's Troubadours. The program was opened by the "Stars and Stripes Forever" by the band and was followed by "America," sung by the audience. Invocation was delivered by Rev. Benjamin R. Lacey, Jr., after which a patriotic melody was rendered by the Elk's Troubadours. B. C. Broyles delivered an address on the "History of the Flag."

One of the most enjoyable features of the program was the singing of Miss Nora Allen, whose beautiful voice carried well over the large park. A patriotic address was delivered by George M. Napier, attorney general for Georgia.

Following Mr. Napier's address, altar services were conducted by officers of the Atlanta lodge of Elks, and then "retreat" was sounded while the flag was lowered, the large audience rising to sing "The Star Spangled Banner." The finale was a concert by the Elks' Royal Purple band, including such selections as "American Patrol," "Old Black Joe," and a number of others.

James D. Watson was chairman of the flag day committee which arranged the program.

Hold Flag Day Exercises.

Waycross, Ga., June 15.—(Special.) E. K. Bennett, of the Waycross bar, and C. N. Wilson, scoutmaster for Waycross, were orators at a flag day ceremony held at the Ware County Community club house Saturday afternoon. Miss Dorothy Smith, of Brenau college, gave an appropriate reading.

HOUR OF MIDNIGHT LIMIT FOR PAYING U. S. INCOME TAX

Because the 15th of June fell on Sunday, taxpayers have been given one day of grace for payment. Midnight tonight is the dead line for payment of the second quarterly instalments.

Of course for those who were affluent enough to pay their whole tax in March, there's no need to worry. Some time in December the treasury department will refund 25 per cent of that payment, in accordance with the tax-reduction bill recently made a law after passage by congress.

From those who are paying in quarterly instalments, the internal revenue collector will expect half the amount that they would have had to pay if congress hadn't acted at it did. That is, if a man made a quarterly payment of $100 on March 15, he needs only pay $50 now—or, if he paid 50 cents then, the regulations now call only for a quarter.

GAS PRODUCTS CO. STILL OPERATING, DESPITE THE FIRE

The Standard Gas Products company is continuing operation as usual and business has not been interrupted despite the disastrous fire of last Friday night in Oakalnd City, according to a statement by officials Sunday.

The company's plant was damaged but not sufficiently to put it out of business, it is stated. The plant of the Southern Oil and Hardening company, in the same building, however, was completely destroyed.

EVERY SEAT TAKEN AT MARTHA BROWN REVIVAL SERVICE

With every seat in the auditorium and balcony taken, the first night of the revival being conducted by the pastor, Rev. E. G. Thomason, at the Martha Brown Memorial Methodist church started, indicated a most successful series of meetings.

His sermon, "Christ's Estimate of Man's Existence," was delivered with appealing force and the singing by the Mackey sisters, Miss "Gene" Mackey and Mrs. Edith Mackey Smith added much to the service, as did the songs by the choir and congregation, led by O. A. Spruell, choirister.

BEAUTY CHATS

OUTDOOR EXERCISE.

I'm sure it seems superfluous to most of my readers to advise fresh air and exercise as a means to real beauty. Everyone must know the value of fresh air, sunshine and physical culture! Everyone does, but everyone doesn't practice it.

Our girls' colleges are doing a great work through putting in sun parlors, outdoor swimming pools, and roo gardens with cots where the less robust girls can lie for a few hours daily in the sun and air and sleep or rest. Some colleges, on the advice of the college doctors or the gymnasium teachers compel many of the girls to take this simple means to better health. And it's a splendid idea.

Sleeping porches are growing more and more common. Thanks to the propaganda among newspapers and magazines, and the suggestions of the architects employed by these publications, outdoor bedrooms are being included in the plans of almost every suburban and country house. It's another little bit towards building up the health of the nation. I wish the various city governments would compel the building of a small sleeping porch on every single dwelling included in the local housing schemes. Why shouldn't workmen's cottages be as healthy as the homes of well-to-do suburban dwellers? There is a difference between sleeping in the air like this, and in a room with a window, or even two windows partly open. Try it and you'll see.

Whether or not you can sleep outdoors, you can exercise outdoors more than you do if you plan your days and your work properly. Many jobs done in the kitchen can be done on the porch, office workers can walk rather than ride to work—think out ways of getting out-of-doors.

I. M.—Cocoa butter is all right to use for massaging any part of the body, but it should not be used on the face or around the upper part of the throat, as it may cause hair to grow. Take from a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful of olive oil with each meal to help you gain in weight. Drink plenty of milk, a pint of which should be taken hot just before retiring, and add cream to it to enrich it, if that is possible.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. WAYCROSS WILL OPEN SUMMER SCHOOL TODAY

Waycross, Ga., June 15.—(Special.) The summer school for senior and junior high schools of Waycross will open Monday, and will be open for six weeks. It is the first time that the city has ever operated a summer school, having heretofore depended on private tutors for the coaching of students who failed to pass one or more units. This year Superintendent A. G. Miller, after correspondence with Savannah, Atlanta, Thomasville and other school superintendents, very strongly recommended establishment of a summer school. Superintendent Miller urged the board of education to protect itself against the work of incompetent tutors, and to accept responsibility for its own students.

Taxicabs composed of motorcycles with side-cars elaborately outfitted in sedan style, are being used in Calcutta.

Fair-Weather Wives

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

A LETTER LEFT BEHIND.

The sun, climbing triumphantly above the dark, mist-drenched pines, woke Marjorie from uneasy slumber. She had slept after all, curled up in a corner of the great couch.

She came back to the world of realities slowly, dazedly. She remembered the denouement of the previous night, her wedding night, when she had shrunk from Hollister and, in her terror of him, cried out the truth.

There was no recalling that sobbed confession, the confession that she had never loved him, but had married him for the wealth he could give her family. He knew the truth in all its stark sordidness. Never again would she have to act the lie. But the consequences——

She shuddered when she thought what her mother and Dan would say, how they would upbraid her for wrecking their future after all their careful planning. For, of course, he would cast her off.

Stiffly she rose, slipped off her dinner gown of the night before and had a hot tub, followed by an icy shower. It sent the young blood singing through her veins. A brisk toweling, a quick coiffure, and the crispest of morning frocks brought her spirits partially back from the slough of despondency into which they had fallen.

It was hard to be wretched, even with the future black and ominous before one, when the sun shone from a cloudless sapphire sky and the whole beautiful flaming forest was awakened to greet a perfect autumn day.

The Indian girl came shyly to summon her to breakfast.

She went laggingly, dreading the meeting with Hollister. She had no idea where he had gone, what he had done, after that terrible moment the night before when he had bowed to her with formal courtesy and left her alone on the parapet.

But her apprehensions were in vain. Hollister did not appear. She breakfasted quite alone in the sunny, flower filled room, with birds caroling gayly outside the open casements and the pungent scents of the forest drifting in on the vagrant breeze.

After breakfast she went out on the veranda that overlooked the valley, the scene of last night's denouement. She was sitting there, her hands folded quietly in her lap, when the old Indian glided out.

Without a word and with a face as inscrutable as a mask, he handed her an envelope. She took it hesitantly, opened it, found a single sheet of paper and read:

"My Dear Marjorie:

"When you receive this I shall be well on my way toward New York. I shall leave as soon as it is dawn and the mountain trails are safe for driving. It is better that I do not say good-bye.

"Please understand this: the lodge and all it contains are yours. When you tire of it, there are cars in the garage to bring you back to town. The old Indian will drive and you will be quite safe with him, I assure you. If you prefer to live in New York, I will open the apartment for you, but should you rather return to Soundview, that, too, will be my consideration.

"Perhaps you do not know that I purchased Soundview intending to make you a postnuptial present of it. I shall do so now, through my attorney, and shall arrange that its upkeep devolves upon me. The bank account which I opened in your name will be for your own personal expenses and regular deposits will be made, also through my attorney.

"Please feel no recriminations for a situation for which you are not in the least responsible, and be assured that neither toward you, nor toward any of your family have I the slightest rancor. I am your friend now and always. If you are ever in distress, a word will bring me and I shall count it my greatest happiness to serve you.

"REED HOLLISTER."

Marjorie read the letter three times before its full purport dawned upon her; then she let it fall into her lap, while she stared off across the valley.

It was incredible, but it was true. . . . He had left her. He had given her her freedom, but his generosity had been left behind to mock her.

She couldn't accept his chivalric sacrifice, of course. It was ridiculous even to contemplate. Her cheeks flushed with hurt pride at the very thought. Oh, she told herself, his revenge had been very complete! Nothing could have hurt her more than this offer of charity. It showed how clearly he had felt her smallness, her cheapness, that he could think she would accept such a gift.

Food and shelter and clothes, all the comforts of life—even the luxuries—he offered her and her family, and asked nothing in return. It was like casting a coin to a beggar, she told herself hotly. How very low, how lacking in pride, he must think her!

She would go back to town at once and rid him of his hateful mistake. wanted to see him again—she would wanted to see him again—she would arrange for a speedy and quiet divorce. She would go to an obscure state and let him divorce her for desertion. Her mother would have to give up the luxury of Soundview. Dan would have to quit Harvard and go to work. Julie and Norris would have to look elsewhere for the little extravagances which they had always depended on her father for, and Leila and Ivan would have to manage the Riviera without her assistance. No matter! Her pride was hurt unbearably, but at least, her honor would be saved.

She went to summon the old Indian.

Chinese Rugs used to be sent to New York

A fine Chinese rug is not much more difficult to clean than any ordinary rug except—the gleaming finish, which is the charm of such a rug, has always been an elusive quality. That is why in the past Chinese Rugs have been sent to New York for cleaning.

A prominent department store in the city, learning of the success we have been having in our carpet-cleaning department, asked us to see what we could do with a Chinese rug. Our "Sani-Shampoo" process proved a revelation to them—the rich finish and sparkling beauty of the rug as we returned it to them was just like new.

How Much of Your Foot Should Rest on the Ground?

THE A. E. Little Shoe utilizes this principle of three-point contact of the foot to correct feet with fallen arches and yet does not sacrifice either beauty or comfort.

THE A. E. Little Shoe has a saddle inner sole. The stitching in the shank is one of the outward signs of its revolutionary inward construction. Notice it when you examine a pair. It binds the outer sole, the inner sole, the counter and the upper all together into a flexi-rigid unit. This insures constant shock-absorbing support of the arch.

A Natural Question.

Abraham Meyer was lying on his death bed. His wife and children were grouped about him. Suddenly the aged man moved, and with an effort, spoke.

"Rachel, my wife—are you here?"

His wife respnoded softly, stroking his hand—"By your side, dear Abe."

"And my son, Morris, is he here?"

"Here I am father," said Morris.

"And my daughter, Sarah, where is she?" gasped the old man.

"We are all here, dear father," responded Sarah.

"Then who's in the store?" thundered the father.

"Nope. But when we started for town this morning she 'lowed she was going to get her a new hat and some sort of other new clothes, and I reckon I wouldn't know her if I was to meet her."

For the benefit of the many who have so often asked about the disappearance of the wooden Indian that used to stand in front of the cigar store, please be informed that he mounted the magnificent dapple gray horse that graced the sidewalk in front of the harness shops.

be a winner, like Cynthia, and Cincinnatus, and Cynosure. See?"

"Sounds like a horse's name to me," Tilda admitted.

Art gave up the attempt. It was clear that Tilda's memory of blue-blooded horse family names was very slight.

"And the other reason I'm not going to sell," said Art, "is one you'll probably know nothing about, too. Know who owns the Universal and Consolidated?"

"No, nor care much."

"James B. Bellman!" He watched her narrowly to see if the name meant anything. It did.

"Bellman!" Tilda exclaimed. "The man who said you were a coward? Fired you, that time?"

"That's him."

"I'd let him wait a long time before I'd sell him anything," said Tilda. "We've got some money put away and we don't need any more. I guess we can live on what we've got."

"I'm glad you feel that way about it," Arthur rejoined. "Because, you know, this oil lease don't do us any good, and—"

"And we can take mighty good care it don't do him any good!" Tilda insisted.

Next day the little ex-jockey went home in a great rush of excitement. He took a letter from his pocket.

"Little Art's gone and joined up with the cavalry," said Art, handing her the letter. "Said he'd rather be in the cavalry than the infantry or artillery, and signed up in the military academy squadron. Bet he can darn near ride horse in his sleep. Never had a hold of one, either. That shows what blood will do! He'll be the best horseman in that squadron, I'll bet.—"

"But we didn't want him monkeying around horses!" said Tilda.

Art Wamsly's proud little air castle tumbled in a forlorn heap.

"That's right," he agreed in dejection. "That's right, we didn't. Is dinner ready? I have to get back to the store."

Two men were waiting for him when he returned to work. When the identity of one of them flashed on his consciousness, he almost fell over in a faint.

"Are you Mr. Wamsly?" demanded James B. Bellman, as tall and overbearing as of old.

"Why, yes, I'm Mr. Wamsly," Art managed to say.

"My names Bellman," snapped the big man. "James B. Bellman, of the Universal and Consolidated."

"Yes, I know it," said Art, speaking his thoughts.

"What's that? I see," went on Bellman, without waiting for Art to repeat his remark. "You know who I am of course! And my company. What's all this about my man here not being able to buy that fool lease of you?"

"He's told you straight, I expect," said Art, his returning courage reinforced by resentment over the fact that Bellman did not seem to know him.

"But look here, you can't turn us down," exclaimed Bellman, impatiently. "We want your lease! We'll pay for it. It's worth something to us, but nothing to you. We're all around that lease now. You can't get any oil out if we don't let you. But we want to be fair and friendly. See? Let's make a trade. What do you say?"

He wound up his attack with an attempt at a friendly jovialness, but it fell flat.

"I say I'm not selling!"

"Ten thousand more than my offer," Bellman tempted.

Art shook his head. At the same time he began wondering whether he should recall himself to Bellman's memory. Before he had made a decision, Bellman concluded the interview.

"The man's crazy. You're right, he won't sell," said Bellman to his representative. "Come along. We'll get that territory without buying it."

With that he strode out of the store.

"He'll see whether I'm a coward and a quitter," declared little Art Wamsly.

Two weeks later a blow fell, and Wamsly's determination to show Bellman he was no coward went for naught. In fact, it played no part in developments. Bellman set half a dozen men to work. In fourteen days he had a sheaf of documents to prove a great number of things, including the fact that the Indian farmer who signed the original Cynthiana lease did not sign it; the fact that if he did, he was of unsound mind; the fact that, in any case, he had been defrauded by the promoter who claimed to have his signature, in that the promoter never paid him a cent—and all these facts duly dressed up with whereas, affidavits, seals, ribbons and other legal and near-legal impediments for such cases made and provided.

Arthur Wamsly knew nothing of all this until he went home one evening, sad at heart, with a letter in his hand. Tilda met him at the door.

"Art, Art," she exclaimed, "have you seen this?"

Oil in the Can

BY JONATHAN BROOK

Most of his oil investments fizzled out. Many of them were worth less than the paper, but Arthur held on to the cigar store. It was hard sledding. He had to work from twelve to fifteen hours a day, and on Sundays to boot, but he kept that cigar store running. In ten years Arthur Wamsly had a little money laid away, still ran the cigar store with the aid of a clerk and had a hired girl, and little Arthur was darn near through the grade school.

If Arthur ever gave thought to his old racing days, he betrayed no sign. None of his patrons and loafing friends could have dreamed of the rankling hurt in his heart at Bellman's slur; dominoes seemed to be his speed.

At the end of twelve years, things changed radically. No less than half a dozen of his chance oil ventures—with ten dollars here and twenty-five there—had materialized! A hundred had vanished, but a few developed even beyond the most roseate promises of wild-eyed promoters. Art was bewildered at first, but maintained a calm composure that represented a splendid tribute to the matter-of-factness of Tilda.

"Just hold on until it's time to sell," she insisted. "It can't do us any good to own oil wells or leases. We can't eat 'em, or operate 'em, either. The money—we can get interest on that!

One by one, watching for buyers with cash in hand, Art Wamsly sold off his good scraps of paper until he had only one of any worth left, and almost a quarter of a million dollars in the three national banks he patronized. Art kept his cigar store and, what is more, continued to run it himself.

Over the protest of Tilda, he did buy a new home in the suburbs. Also over the protest of Tilda, he made one other radical change in their mode of living. He took Art, Jr., now darn near fourteen years old and already in high school, out of the school and sent him to a good military academy over in Missouri.

From that time on, things happened.

"Tilda, listen," exclaimed Art one evening a few days after little Arthur had departed for the military academy. "The Universal and Consolidated Oil company wants that last oil lease I've got."

"Well, sell it to them. It's not doing us any good," said Tilda, matter-of-fact.

"Don't believe I will," Art replied.

"What? Turn down good money? Why?"

"Well," Art explained, flushing rather guiltily, "one reason is, that the name of this claim is the Cynthiana."

"I don't see anything in Cynthiana."

"Gave a man seventy-five dollars for the little old piece of paper four years ago, because he called the thing Cynthiana. Had a hunch it would

CRACKERS AND VOLS BREAK EVEN IN DOUBLE BILL

Roy Moore's Triple in 13th Inning Wins First Game, 5-3 Second Is Dropped, 9 to 5

Nashville, Tenn., June 15.—(Special.)—Atlanta and Nashville broke even in a double-header here this afternoon, Atlanta winning the first game, 5 to 3, in 13 innings while the Vols took the second game, 9 to 5, in five innings.

Nashville was one run behind the Crackers in the ninth and by a splendid rally tied the count.

In the 13th inning both Hillis and Brock were easy outs but Francis got a life on Fisher's boot of his easy roller. Zoellers then singled and Roy Moore hit one to deep center field for three bases scoring Francis and Zoellers with the winning runs. Francis held the Vols well in check. Nashville had very few chances to score after the 9th inning.

George Dumont was on the mound for the Crackers in the second game and was knocked out of the box in the first inning by a heavy bombardment on the part of the Vols. Swartz relieved him and pitched good ball. Atlanta attempted to stage a comeback but fell short when Enzmann was rushed into the game to relieve Morris who had weakened.

Both teams secured 11 hits apiece in the first game, and nine of the 22 hits were for extra bases. Nashville led in the number of extra bases with three doubles and two triples, but Francis tightened up in the pinches and held the Vols away from the home station.

Freddie Graff had a busy day, handling four chances at third base and getting four hits out of five trips to the plate.

Along with Moore, the hitting features of the Crackers were Burrus with two doubles in five trips to the plate and Hillis with two out of four attempts.

Haworth was ejected from the first game because of protesting a decision on a called strike.

Burrus tied up the second game for Atlanta in the fifth inning with a home run with two men on the bases but the Vols came back with a rally in their half and won the game, before it was called because of darkness.

PELS TAKE DOUBLE BILL.

New Orleans, June 15.—New Orleans won its tenth consecutive game today by taking both ends of a double-header from Little Rock 5 to 1 and 11 to 2. Hollingsworth marked up his tenth straight win when he pitched his team to victory in the second game. Bunched hits off Blethen in the first inning gave the Pelicans their five runs in the first game. McCall, who relieved Blethen before the inning was completed, hurled air-tight ball.

'NOOGA WINS IN ELEVENTH.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 15.—After Sedgwick had won his own game for Chattanooga with a triple in the eleventh inning of the first game, by 4 to 3, Chattanooga and Birmingham battled ten innings to a 4-4 tie in the second. A peculiar play scored the tying run for the Lookouts in the second game. With the bases full in the fourth, J. Anderson lifted a high fly back of second. When it became apparent that Stewart and Camp were tangled up on the play, all runners tried to advance. Kress scored and Camp was tagged out at second, the umpire ruling the batter out on the infield fly rule. The play caused a heated discussion, play being delayed for ten minutes, the claim being made that under the Southern Association rule the infield fly is a "dead ball."

DETROIT SMOTHERS BOSTON.

Detroit, June 15.—Detroit smothered Boston under an avalanche of 21 hits today and won 10 to 4. Each Tiger player got at least one hit and Cobb hit safely five out of six times at bat. In his last time up, he smashed the ball to deep center but Flagstead made a startling one-handed catch.

BROWNS BREAK LOSING STREAK.

St. Louis, June 15.—The St. Louis Browns broke their losing streak today, defeating Philadelphia 9 to 8 in a ten-inning game featured by heavy hitting by both teams. Ten two-base hits, and five homers, kept the result in doubt until the tenth inning when Sisler's single brought in Kolp with the winning run. Williams drove out his eleventh home run.

New Orleans Pels Close On Trail of Memphis Chicks

Memphis, Tenn., June 15.—Larry Gilbert's speedy Pelicans, of New Orleans, who were five and a half games behind the league leading Memphis Chickasaws in the Southern association standing column a week ago, tonight had cut the distance to one and a half games, and showed no signs of slackening their pace.

Winning a double-header today, the Pelicans came through the week with nine victories and no defeats. In two weeks they have gained seven and a half games on the league leaders.

Nashville has ousted Atlanta from third place, while Mobile, Birmingham, Little Rock and Chattanooga, forming the second division in the order named, did not change their relative standing, although in actual figures both Little Rock and Chattanooga gained points during the week.

Having taken the measure of the Chickasaws for four straight games during the past week, the Pelicans will invade Memphis Wednesday for a five-game series with the Chicks.

The Pelicans led the league in practically every department of the game during the week. Including Saturday's game, they had scored 38 runs and had driven out 71 hits in seven starts, the best offensive record for the league during the period. In seven games they made only six errors and allowed opponents but 20 runs. Nashville, in defense, shaded the Pelicans slightly, making but four errors in six games and letting opponents down with 16 runs.

Atlanta, in six games, including Saturday's, made 36 runs on 64 hits.

Pels Beat Chicks 4 Games.

Included in the New Orleans string of victories were four over Memphis. These defeats for the Chickasaws accounted for the fact that for the third week of the season they lost more games than they won. The Chicks made 35 runs on 68 hits in seven games including Saturday's, but their opponents scored 31 runs, 24 of which were made by New Orleans.

Little Rock displayed signs of throwing off the jinx which has pursued the Travelers since the third week of the season. For the first week since that time their victories outnumbered their defeats. Chattanooga, for the second week during the season, got as good as an even break.

Mobile's slump is reflected in the fact that in eight games, including Saturday's, the Bears made 18 errors, while Birmingham's reverses are traced to ineffective pitching rather than errors. The Baron twirlers were found for forty runs in five games, including Saturday's. Mobile had 52 men left on base, the highest figure for the week.

Including Saturday's games, eleven home runs were scored during the week. Paschal, of Atlanta, and Wade, of Memphis, each got two in one day Lebourveau, of Nashville, got two during the week.

The week's play, including Saturday's games, follows:

Teams—	P.	W.	L.	R.	H.	E.	LOB.	OR.

TwoGamesPlayed At Fort Sunday

The two games of ball played at Fort McPherson yesterday were witnessed by over 2,000 people and were well pleased with the variety of entertainment furnished.

The first game was between the strong Federal Prison club and a picked team from the best players of the Perrin league. While these boys play very good ball in the Perrin league, they did not make much of a showing against the strong prison team. The score was 10 to 2.

The batteries were Lavender, Hoover and Morris for the Perrin Stars Dolan and Katsfiaz for the Feds.

Perrin Team Wins.

The second game was between the Perrins Athletics and a team called the All-Stars, composed of many of the best players of the city. This game brought together two pitchers who had tried out for Atlanta and Macon teams this spring. They were Dan McEcheron, who had been trying out for Atlanta and "Lefty" Larsen, who played with Macon this spring. The Athletics won by a score of 7 to 2.

Larsen pitching for Athletics held them safe all the way striking out eleven men, and gave up only four hits. McEcheron also pitched a good game, holding the heavy-hitting Athletics to but eight hits, many errors behind him being responsible for most of the runs. Blackstock who tried out for Atlanta, was an important factor in scoring the runs, getting two hits out of four trips to the plate, one being a three-bagger. "Tar Baby" Bopher also played a good game in the field and at the bat, sharing honors with Blackstock.

McEcheron and Jones were the batteries for the All-Stars, while Larsen and Vandergriff and Walton worked for the All-Stars.

Greatest Array of Stars Ever Assembled Will Carry Colors of United States

New York, June 15.—(By The Associated Press.)—A modern argosy in quest of the golden fleece of international athletic triumph, will set sail tomorrow when the main body of America's Olympic team departs for Paris and the 1924 world's championships.

Headed by a track and field array of 105 stars, a total aggregation of 253 men and women athletes, who will carry the Yankee shield in eight different branches of competition will embark from Hoboken on the specially chartered steamer America. The departure is scheduled to take place at noon, eastern standard time, to the accompaniment of a fitting patriotic farewell demonstration.

In addition to the track team, the expedition will include, according to official announcement tonight, 11 gymnasts, 26 boxers, 17 wrestlers, 36 men and and 24 women swimmers, seven cyclists, 17 fencers and 10 oarsmen.

The Yale varsity eight, which won the right to represent the United States in the Olympics by a record-breaking victory in the final trials at Philadelphia yesterday, is scheduled to leave on the Homeric next Saturday, the day after the Blue Boat, attempting one of the most unusual campaigns in aquatic annals, rows its annual four mile race with Harvard at New London, Conn.

Is Strong Team.

Seldom in the nearly thirty years of Olympic history has the United States assembled so formidable a collection of athletic stars in defense of the laurels this country has carried off consistently since the first games at Athens in 1896. Particularly is this true of the track and field squad which, in spite of the fact that it faces probably the stiffest competition of all time, will sail with high hopes of triumph as a result of the spectacular showing made in the final tryouts at the Harvard stadium.

No more sustained brilliance has ever been witnessed in track meets than that displayed in the two-day tests at Cambridge, where the pick of talent from all parts of the country, in a desperate and thrilling battle for places, smashed three world's marks and eclipsed records in fourteen instances.

Though veterans held their share of the limelight, the vast majority of the team that emerged from the trials is composed of new Olympic timber, school and college stars upon whose youthful shoulders the brunt of the international battle will rest. Only a score of thise picked for the team are survivors of the 1920 Olympics at Antwerp, but the sensational fashion in which newcomers met the acid tests convinced observers that America is prepared for the crucial fight as she seldom has been before.

Finland, the little country whose athletes tied the United States in first place honors with nine victories four years ago, will lead the rival charge at Paris, but predictions were made today that Uncle Sam has at least a dozen potential Olympic champions in the array that embarks tomorrow.

Scholz Leads Sprinters.

Jackson Scholz, of the New York A. C., hero of a remarkable comeback, who smashed the world's 200-meter dash record twice in consecutive days heads a group of ten brilliant sprinters, which also includes Chester Bowman, of Syracuse, conqueror of Scholz and Charley Paddock, the Olympic champion in the 100-meter final and Frank Hussey, New York schoolboy, who gained a place on the team by proving his mettle against the world's greatest sprinters in his first test in competition with them.

Other luminaries are J. Coard Taylor, of the New York Athletic club, and Ray Robertson, of the Boston A. A., who shared in lowering the world's 400-meter run record; Joie Ray, veteran mile champion who will bid for Olympic triumph at 3,000 meters instead of 1,500; George Taylor, of Grinnell college, who showed phenomenal speed over the 400-meter hurdles, and Bill Richardson, of Leland Stanford, victor over a remarkable 800-meter field, besides a host of stars in the field events. The distance runs are America's weakest spot, though a few stars such as Verne Booth, of Johns Hopkins; Johnny Gray, of Philadelphia; John Romig, of Penn State, and R. Earl Johnson, of Pittsburg, are potential point winners.

Three additions to the track team were announced tonight. They are Basil Irwin, Newark A. C., in the 3,000-meter steeplechase; Ben Owen, University of Pennsylvania, in the pole vault, and C. F. Gates, of Princeton university, in the hammer throw. Of the three conditionally selected, C. A. C. Eastman, Harvard shot putter, is expected to sail on the America, while two navy men, A. B. Leggett, in the pentathlon, and Lieutenant H. B. Liversedge, in the shot put, are slated to accompany a special navy squad that will go to France on the battleship West Virginia.

Pat McDonald, veteran shot putter and former Olympic champion, who failed to qualify for the team, has been invited to make the trip as the guest of Colonel Robert M. Thompson, chairman of the Olympic committee.

Wonderlich Is Much Improved

Altoona, Pa., June 15.—Jerry Wonderlich, widely-known motor racer who was injured in the 250-mile speedway race here, is resting comfortably after being officially "dead" for several minutes Saturday.

"Wonderlich's condition is very good today," said a bulletin from the Altoona hospital. "No serious results are now expected."

Jerry ttakes the smashe-up philosophically, declaring he is "only tired and sore."

When the Wonderlich car went off the track in the 200th lap of the race, it was announced from the field hospital immediately afterward that he had died of a broken neck. Later it was learned that he had suffered only a slight concussion of the brain and two or three broken bones.

"Here Comes the Bride."

(At the Atlanta.)

"Here Comes the Bride," another sparkling comedy of the type in which the popular Baldwin Players always appear to splendid advantage, will be offered Atlantans at the Atlanta theater tonight for the first time.

A feature of the week—and one that has aroused immense interest among brides and bridegrooms—is the offer on the part of Manager Baldwin to present a box for an evening performance to any bridal couple whose wedding occurs while the comedy is being shown.

So there probably will be brides and bridegrooms in the audience to whom the title of the play will have a sentimental meaning all its own, and every effort will be made by John B. Litel, Miss Gladys Hurlbut and others of the players to make the play a distinct pleasure to them as well as to the hundreds of other Atlantans who will witness the show.

"Here Comes the Bride" will be shown throughout the week, with performances each evening and matinees on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

"The Lonesome Pine."

(At the Lyric.)

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," the famous old John Fox, Jr., romance of the Blue Ridge mountains, is to be reviewed by the Lyric players this week, beginning tonight, as a starring vehicle for Miss Isabelle Lowe, the leading woman. Miss Lowe created the part of June in her first engagement as leading woman.

The story has been told in novel, stage, motion picture and song versions and is one of the most delightful love themes of the century. Ladies' bargain night prices prevail for the opening night.

Hodges Musical Comedy.

(At the Forsyth.)

"That's My Wife," a racy musical comedy with as many laughs as can be crowded into an hour and a half, is the offering this week of Jimmie Hodges and his musical comedy company at the Forsyth theater. The play was written by Mr. Hodges himself, and he has given himself a part in which he far surpasses in point of versatility and entertainment his performances in the two previous productions.

One of the features of the production are the unusually beautiful costumes which have been provided members of the big beauty chorus, and the scenic effects that play an important part in the play's success.

Loew's Vaudeville.

(At the Grand.)

There are two outstanding features on the "big week" bill at Loew's Grand theater this week. One is the appearance of the Georgia Serenaders, who headlin the bill of vaudeville and the other is the showing of the picture "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," from the famous poem by Robert W. Service. In addition WSB will broadcast the entire show from the stage of the theater. Caverly and Wald in "Rice Pudding" is another big feature of the vaudeville bill with a varied assortment of songs, dances and comedy. Clark and Villani offer their laugh festival "The Income Tax," a riot of fun. Milton Berle "Established 1906," has an excellent song and comedy skit, while Downey and Claridge in "Wait and See," offer a number of vaudeville features. "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" has a star cast including Barbara LaMarr, Lew Cody and Percy Marmont.

"Thy Name Is Woman."

(At the Howard.)

"Thy Name Is Woman," featuring Ramon Novarro, the perfect lover, fresh from his sensational triumph, Rex Ingram's "Scaramouche," and Barbara LaMarr as the lovely Guerita, a tiger-moth of a woman, vivid, gay and appealing, which is playing at the Howard all this week, is the dramatic comet of the year.

The overture for the week by the Howard Symphony orchestra under the direction of Buel B. Risinger is Chabrier's "Spanish Rhapsody." The comedy is "Cat's Meow," a Pathe Mack Sennett comedy.

The prologue is the Howard Ballet divertissement, Mlle. Amalia and her corps de ballet of five dancers.

"Daughters of Today."

(At the Rialto.)

"Daughters of Today," which opens at the Rialto theater for the week, promises to be the subject of much discussion in Atlanta, judging from the numerous telephone calls which have besieged Manager W. T. Murray, of the Rialto, asking the starting times of the showings of this sensation of the present screen year.

"Daughters of Today" pictures a group in a large college city and tells in a realistic manner the humorous, dramatic and sometimes pathetic episodes that mark their path as they race from one wild adventure to another.

Many June Brides Guests Of Constitution This Week

When the lowly cuckoo darts out through the dial today and onto an improvised limb to chirp the hour of noon. The Constitution's June Bride contest will have closed, and with it the last opportunity for June brides to secure a free ticket to "Here Comes the Bride," showing at the Atlanta theater this week.

Scores of Atlanta matrons who followed Cupid down the rose-strewn paths in Junes of years gone by, with quite a number who have embarked in the adventurous little canoe during the present month, will gather at the Atlanta this week as guests of The Constitution.

All Atlanta brides who were wedded in June of any year are eligible for two tickets, and should apply before noon today to The Constitution's "June Bride" editor. No requests can be considered after noon today, inasmuch as the large number already received will keep theater officials busy for several hours. Sunday's mail added many requests to the number already on hand, and two theater attaches were busy throughout the day opening letters and mailing out tickets to applicants.

In writing, the applicant must give full name, address, date of marriage and name of the fortunate groom.

Requests for tickets placed in the mails before noon today will receive attention, and, if you are eligible, do not wait until the cuckoo rings down the curtain. Mail application early or send by messenger to The Constitution.

Training Offered American Boys By Ship Board

Washington, June 15.—The first step in plans to give the United States an American-manned merchant marine has been taken by the shipping board under a decision to place boys between the ages of 18 and 23 years on commercial ship's crews. The boys will be able to work their way to officers' berths through an arrangement by the industrial relations division of the shipping board working in conjunction with its sea service bureau.

Under the plan, detailed instructions of which have been sent to fleet corporation district directors on the Atlantic, Pacific and gulf coasts, two decks boys will replace one ordinary seaman on all of the government's merchant vessels and will receive a thorough training and be given examinations for higher ratings.

The boys, who must be American born or naturalized, will be paid $25 a month and receive the customary subsistence. As an ordinary seaman averages $47.50 a month, the total crew payroll will be increased only $2.50 a month, the total cost for all ships with the plan in full operation being estimated at $200,000 a year.

An applicant must be under 23 years of age and while 18 is fixed as the minimum age requirement, the physical and mental development of boys at that age, the instructors point out, will be considered as a factor in making appointments. Minors will require the consent of their parents or guardians to ship as deck boys.

The sea service bureau has advised masters and officers of the government's merchant vessels that upon them will be imposed the duty of training the deck boys to become ordinary and able seamen and later, as they develop ability and acceptance, to receive higher ratings.

The youths will be required to serve six months before being rated as ordinary seamen and a year before being eligible for able-seamen ratings through tests prepared by the United States steamboat inspection service.

'TRIPLE CITIES' PLAN SUMMER CARNIVALS

Daytona, Fla., June 15.—(Special.)—Known for decades as "the winter playground of America," the Florida east coast, aided by railroads and steamship lines with special rates and frequent excursions, is now bidding for summer resort laurels and making a special appeal to residents of southeastern states for summertime visitation. Showing the scope of the movement, special railroad rates are offered from all sections east of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio by the railroads and from New York south by the steamship lines.

With hotels operating at reduced rates that have catered exclusively to wealthy northerners heretofore, and with varied amusements scheduled for the entire summer season, Daytona, Daytona Beach and Seabreeze, bordering the Atlantic ocean on the world's fastest auto course, lead the procession in this newly inaugurated and typical of Florida movement. The Triple Cities propose to be known, jointly, not merely as the fall, winter and springtime havens of the Rockefellers and other notables of the financial, political, artistic and social worlds, but as "the Atlantic City of the South." In bidding for patronage on the plea that their summer climate is equal or superior to that of interior states, they refer "doubting Thomases" to daily weather reports and to multimillionaires from northern states who have become permanent residents in recent years.

Plans have been perfected for holding on July 3, 4 and 5 what promises to be the most unique summer festival of southern history—one based upon the fetes for which the countries of southern Europe and Latin-America are famous. "Halifax Summer Frolics" is the name adopted for the festival, which will be an annual event, and in which advantages offered by the Atlantic ocean, Halifax river and state-traversing hard-surfaced highways will be utilized to the limit.

Airplane, automobile and motorcycle races, all-Florida bathing beauty and swimming, diving, boating and yachting contests, dances on the ocean beach and in the palatial Clarendon hotel at Seabreeze, over-water fireworks displays, fishing parties and spectacles staged for motion picture presentation are among the features on the program. To these, weekend features will be added.

The Halifax country of Florida has begun to establish itself as a 12-month resort—as host to northern "Yanks" in winter and southern "Rebs" in summer.

LODGE AND HOUSE IN LEAGUE DEBATE

New York, June 15.—Urging that the democratic platform include a pledge that the United States become an "associated" member of the league of nations in order "to salvage something of our honor and self-respect from the wreck of republican misadventure," Colonel Edward M. House, the late Woodrow Wilson's silent advisor, assails the republican party and its foreign policy in an article appearing Monday in Foreign Affairs.

In the same issue, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, reviews the record of this country's foreign relations since the inauguration of President Harding and pronounces it excellent.

Views Divergent.

"There has never been a period when the United States has been more active, and its influence more felt internationally than between 1921 and 1924," Senator Lodge writes.

Colonel House does not echo this statement.

"When Wilson relinquished office on March 4, 1921, American prestige stood at its highest point in history," he writes. "But idealism gave way to materialism, and instead of looking upon the world from the mountain top we find ourselves in the valley of despair."

House Quotes Taft.

In his advocacy of the league of nations, Colonel House quotes the support originally given the league idea by the republican leaders, especially President Taft and Senator Lodge. He dismisses the world court as "admirable as an adjunct to the league, but a mere gesture without it." He then states definitely, as follows, his plan for wider American participation in league affairs:

"The United States entered the world war as an associate power, and did not become a party to any treaties, secret or otherwist, or to any of the misunderstandings which the allies had among themselves.

Wants League Plank.

"The democrats should declare at their forthcoming convention that if successful at the polls next November they will pledge the president to ask congress by joint resolution to authorize the United States to become an associated member of the League of Nations without any way comaitting the country to the covenant.

"Thus, the fears of the timid could be dispelled regarding a super-state and an entangling alliance. (articles 10 and 16)."

Senator Lodge, in his article on American foreign relations, defends the foreign policy of the republican party, enumerating the many treaties signed with foreign countries in the past three years, recording our negotiations with South America, and pointing to increased American influence abroad.

Isolation Impossible.

"There is no such thing as an isolationist in the United States," Lodge writes. "There never has been, and the United States has never been isolated.

"The rest of the world could not isolate us and we have never done it or thought of doing it ourselves."

"It seems to me that the United States can best serve the world, first, by preserving its own strength and the fabric of its civilization, which is the great bulwark at the present moment between the civilized world and anarchy, and help humanity most fully by being detached from the European system and giving and helping indenpendently, freely and in their own fashion.

Let League Prosper.

"We are outside Europe, and for that very reason if we keep our own independence and do not entangle ourselves with difficulties and quarrels which Europe understands and which we do not understand, we can be of more service to the peace and welfare of the world, it seems to me, than in any other way."

"Let the league," Senator Lodge writes, in concluding his article, which was made in Europe and belongs in Europe, go on there and prosper. We wish it well, but let us, refrain from permanent alliances against which Washington warned us, go on in our own way and try disinterestedly and without taint of foreign influences to help Europe and the affairs of Europe in every possible way, the way to be determined by us."
